"I just didn't even count the years," Londonderry High School Music Director, Andy Soucy laughed. "They kind of snuck up on me!"

After 46 years of teaching at LHS, Soucy announced his plans to retire, much to the resounding disappointment of students, colleagues, parents and alumni.

Soucy began teaching in 1972 at the age of 21 when he was freshly graduated from Keene State College.

During his 4 decades at LHS he has influenced and encouraged generations of students to follow their passions.

"Like many other former students who chose to make music a career, I find myself inspired still to this day by Mr. Soucy," said 2008 LHS graduate, Laura Chicarello. "I now live in Texas and teach a large studio of over 50 private students, all of whom play my beloved instrument, the French horn.'

Candidates Look to Fill Two School Board Seats ATIE O'DONNELL

wo spots on the Londonderry School Board are up for grabs this year with five fresh faces vying for the positions currently being held by Leitha Reilly and Steve Young. Young is running for reelection while Reilly is not. The backgrounds of those running for the board are diverse but the main reason is the same- to make the school system even better than it is now.

Michael Saucier is a 39-year old high school history teacher who has been in town for 12 years.

His two daughters are currently enrolled in local schools and said being on the school board is "something I've always wanted to do." He feels he's qualified to serve on the board because he's been all sides of education as a parent, a teacher, a coach and a department head.

"I think the key is to have a long-term plan in place," said Saucier, referencing the projected growth in town. He feels making sure the schools are properly staffed and supported is the best "be forward way to thinking."

"We need to sit down with everybody and make a 5 to 10-year plan to cut budget costs," said Saucier.

He supports the proposed budget because he feels it gives the schools "the increases we need right now." He was disappointed with the board's because she is both an Depasse. "I love it here!"

previous decision to cut educational assistants after the money was already allocated for them. He believes "anytime we can keep educators in the classroom, we should do it."

Another educator running for the school board is 23-year old Katlyn Brutus-McKenzie. She is the owner of The Learning Tree where she also teaches kindergarten. She was raised in Londonderry and considers herself a "townie." She's running for the school board because she feels an educator should be part of the decision making.

"How else will people on the school board know what [teachers] need" if they are not represented on the board, said Brutus-McKenzie. "If we're giving teachers what they need... that will help overall."

She supports the proposed budget because "I feel the kids are worth the 11 cents."

Brutus-McKenzie said she is qualified for the job educator and a business owner. She has the experience and the education to serve the board, despite her age.

Greg Depasse also has experience with the Londonderry school system. The 45-year old architect has lived in town for 15years and has three kids in the school system.

He said he ran for the school board because he "wanted to bring another voice to the table." He was inspired to run for office after seeing the district reallocate funds that were originally supposed to go to hiring classroom aides.

"It didn't sit well," said Depasse. "It really seemed to go against all the organized efforts of a lot of people."

He wants to increase communication between the board, parents and the community. If elected to the board, he said he wants to create a 5 to 10-year plan "with involvement from across the town."

"I've been pretty involved in the schools, in the community," said said he also wants to keep in town since 2010, where he currently works with natural food companies to develop their brands, as well as working on becoming a real estate agent. The 57-year old has two children in the school system. He is very much a part of his kids' lives, getting them ready for school and helping with school parties. He decided to run for the school board when he noticed the space issues going on at Moose Hill School.

"I saw that there was a lot of miscommunication," said Katz, regarding the new district office and he wanted to get the full story of what was going on. He felt being on the school board was the best way to get all the informa-trict "into the future." Katz is passionate about the programs at Moose Hill, since his youngest son participated in the LEAP program when he was there. Katz promoting STEM educa> board would be a truly excellent way to give back," Katz said.

With all of the newcomers coming to test their merit, Young is looking "to continue what I've been doing for the last 15years." He said he has been trying to advocate for "right-sizing" in the classroom, which is giving the schools and teachers what they need for appropriate staffing and support, while being what he calls, "yankee frugal."

Young voted against this year's proposed budget, saying, "my issue with the budget was that is was the superintendent's budget and not the board's budget." He felt the board should have examined it more closely and found ways to cut it down. He also dislikes that the district office ia on both the proposed and the default budgets, while the extra space for Moose Hill is not. No matter what, the district gets a new office, but the kids will only get the portable classrooms if the proposed budget is passed.

"I think that's wrong," said Young.

He felt his greatest achievement while serving on the board was successfully suing the state government to equally fund students, regardless of what district they live in.

Young said he likes having others run against him because it promotes more voices and brings more opinions to the board.

He said being a member of the school board "makes you a sharper, stronger person.'

The final person running for the school board, Owen McAlister, could not be reached for comment.

Winter Clearing Reveals Clean Up Work

We're not sure what happened to winter while it has certainly been chilly, the absence of snow has been weird to say the least. Even the die-hard snow haters are commenting on the very little just enough to be annoying snow we have had. But whether you love snow or hate it, one thing is certain it tends to hide the trash that litters our roadsides every day of the year.

And now that the last remnants of ice/snow are disappearing, we can make up for some of the exercise we missed by not shoveling or having anywhere to ski or snowshoe by engaging in a new winter activity picking up the fast food containers, coffee cups and beer cans that end up in ditches and along our roads. We've been seeing all kinds of things popping up along the road and we don't mean spring flowers.

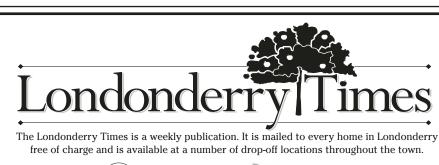

The mess along our streets paints a picture that is far from pretty. It's disheartening to realize how many people are dumping trash and garbage from their cars as they drive by. And even sadder is the realization that much of what's tossed could easily have been recycled.

Most towns have some sort of spring cleanup. And they all offer a way to recycle, whether by putting out recycling containers with the weekly trash pickup or making a collection available at the town transfer station. Londonderry perhaps has the most extensive spring cleanup, with its Beautify Londonderry campaign that lasts several weeks and involves volunteers cleaning up and planting public spaces.

The town also has a Anti-Littering Advisory Committee focused on combating litter, and is ramping up its activity as the warmer weather approaches, with a focus on "Roadside Pride." That's a concept that isn't specific to Londonderry wherever we live, we should expect our streets and lawns to be clean, not repositories for someone's casually tossed out refuse. We don't know why people litter, but we do know that it pollutes other people's property and is against the law.

Whether you decide to join a formal, town organized clean-up, or you take it upon yourself to keep a portion of the road where you live or the land where you walk free of litter, we urge everyone who's physically able to make a commitment to help their town look its best as winter wanes and spring approaches, and for the foreseeable future.

Help keep our towns beautiful and clean. We're all in this together. No littering, please!

Vote for Farrell

To the editor,

Over the past four opportunity to interact with Sherry Farrell in her position as Town Clerk on numerous occasions.

Sherry brings an upbeat atmosphere of friendliness and a high standard of professionalism to our Town Hall.

Sherry is kind and caring, and often takes time outside of her regular working hours to accommodate the needs of the citizens of Londonderry.

Sherry takes great pride in her job, and goes above and beyondthe expectations of her position. Never expected, always appreciated.

A vote to re-elect Sheron March the 13th is a vote to continue the current level of excellent service to the citizens of Londonderry.

The case did not seem to have much life left in it afterwards, as once the board proceeded to decide whether or not a rehearing would be granted, Vice Chair Jacqueline Benard was quick to note that no new evidence in favor of the developers was presented, nor was there any new information about the project or change in the conditions of the variance request.

The final day of school in 2019 is slated for Thursday, June 13, but there is wiggle room allowed in case of snow days or weather related cancellations. The calendar has designated ten days of extra days to prepare for the inevitable weather in the winter and early spring months (the final day of school could potentially be Thursday, June 27 of 2019). The only stipulations made by the School Board were the continuing inquiry of why there is no school on the day before Thanksgiving and why there are days off for parent/teacher conferences. Although these issues were discussed amongst the members of the School Board, the motion was still made to accept the 2018-19 school calendar by a vote of 5-0.

Aspiring Female Medical Professionals

On March 8, at 7 p.m., Etz Hayim Synagogue, 1-1/2 Hood Road, Derry, will hold a program on women in the medical profession. If your daughter is thinking about a career in medicine, please join us for a panel discussion by female doctors working in different medical specialties. Bring all your questions: "What's it like cutting into someone's stomach?" "How hard is it to get into medical/dental school?" "What if I got a C in geometry in high school?" "Will I really be able to manage a family?" Our doctors will be "on call" for you. The program is part of Etz Hayim's "Hot Topics, Cool Contemporary Stuff" continuing education program. It is open and free to the public.

On to Phase Five

Londonderry Trailways received a substantial donation from Eversouce Energy last week toward their efforts with the Rail Trail that stretches from the Rockingham Road to the Manchester Regional Airport. Eversource representatives presented Trailways members with a check for $5,000, which will go toward their efforts in Phase Five of the project, connecting Mammoth Road to Harvey Road near the end of the airport runway. The funds are part of a Community Grant that Eversource gives to communities that have been impacted by construction in the area. Presenting the check were Allison McLean, Community Relations Manager, Kevin Bemis, Environmental Coordinator and Community Relations Specialist Elizabeth LaRocca. Receiving the check were Bob Saur, Pollyann Winslow and Bob Photo by Chris Paul Rimol.
