Zoning Board Allows L-Town Garage To Rebuild After Fire

MIKE BYERLY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The ZBA heard a request for a variance from the owners of L-Town Garage, an auto service center, looking to rebuild on the same location after a major fire damaged their offices and work bays.

The January fire destroyed more than 75% of the value of the business. The commercial business had been allowed to operate in a residential zone III (multi-family residential), but according to Londonderry zoning ordinance 4.2.1, when damage exceeds 75% of the replacement value of the property, any past grant of a non-conforming use of the property is nullified. As a result, L-Town would not be allowed to operate a commercial business in this residential area.

Further, being in a residential III zone, the building would have to be set back at least 40 feet from the roadway. The current building is 25 feet from the roadway. Part of the variance request was to

Public Comments Get Heated During Town Council Meeting

LORI COSTA
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Monday night's Town Council meeting lasted just under an hour. With no public hearings or old business on the agenda, the council kept the meeting moving.

The longest portion of the meeting was public comment where citizens of the town can address the council about any and all issues in town.

Most recently, new public comment rules were accepted that limit public comments to five minutes of each individual, because the council is unaware of what they will be speaking about beforehand. One member of the public came forth to question the council about their decision to no longer help the school district with the town's undesignated fund balance.

This issue had been ongoing for months after a tax shortfall that required the town and school to pay $600,000. The School Board had a difference of opinion on who should be the ones to pay and allocated to pay $0 towards the shortfall. The Town Council was disappointed to hear this, but dipped into their undesignated fund balance to ensure that the shortfall was fixed. After this, the town made the decision to not dip into their undesignated fund balance again to help the school district.

Town resident John Wilson was concerned about the town no longer helping the school. "Suppose there was a disaster prior to April 16 (before the rule was passed) that affected the school district. Would you or would you not have dipped into that fund to help the school district?" he asked the council. Chairman John Farrell told Wilson that the town would have to make an argument and go to court and get that money released, but only after the school district exhausts all the money in their rainy day fund.

"If they (school district) came to us today and said 'we need a mil-

Town Councilors Outline Some of Their Future Goals

LORI COSTA
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Over the past few months, members of the Town Council have been brainstorming ideas for what they want to accomplish in the town of Londonderry and as a council themselves for a legacy to leave behind.

So, during the Monday night Town Council meeting, members started to share some of their thoughts for the future.

The first goal for Councilor Tom Dolan was to ask Town Manager Kevin Smith to focus on 1-3 new enterprises for the Pettengill Road development and bring in new businesses to Londonderry.

The other council members agreed this was a good idea to look into. Smith said that when a new business is looking to expand, he always recommends Pettengill Road and the land is going for a premium at the moment.

"There are still a few large parcels of land available in town, which are not as expensive as Pettengill Road, but nonetheless we have directed developers to the other sites as well," Smith said. Dolan made the amendment to his goal to focus on 1-3 new enterprises in town (not just Pettengill).

The newest Councilor, Ted Combes said his goal would be to work with neighboring towns, such as Manchester to see if they would like to expand their bus access to Pettengill Road. Especially if

Allen Team Continue Efforts to Beautify Town Forest for 300th

Kent and Meredith Allen have been quite busy this spring clearing brush, large trees and creating new pathways through the Town Forest, also known as the "Kent Allen Forest."

On Monday, they were visited by Curt Laffin an Executive Councilor of the American Chestnut Foundation. He was at the forest to replace the chestnut saplings he had helped plant last year with new, more blight resistant trees that had been genetically crossed with a Chinese chestnut tree.

The American Chestnut trees in the area only last a dozen years or so, and the foundation is dedicated to breeding a more blight-resistant tree.

The trees were planted last year with the help of students from the three elementary school.

Later in the day, Kent Allen planted Blue Muffin bushes around the new kiosk he had installed which will display the donors to his beautifying effort.

A section of the forest is being dedicated to flowering bushes to celebrate the Nutfield 300th celebration.

Kent and his wife are still looking for donors and hope that residents and local businesses will take advantage of the early growing season to help in their efforts.

Shrubs donations are $40 for a small and $80 for a large.

Trees can be purchased for between $250 to $350. And for $25 a plaque will be placed in the forest with the donors name.

To make a donation, or those with questions can call Meredith Allen at 603-568-6249.

Zoning Board Relaxes Landscape Buffer For Proposed Retail Development

MIKE BYERLY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Everything Essential Salon, a business looking to move from their location at 18 Orchard View Drive to a proposed new retail and office space on Mohawk Drive made their pitch to be allowed to have less of a landscape buffer than is required by town ordinance.

When a commercial building or parking lot is within 200 feet of a residential property, the commercial property is required to have at least a 50-foot landscape buffer to help shield it from the residential area.

Maillet & Associates, LLC is the property owner and would be developing the property. Matt Routhier of Bedford Design Consultants led the presentation to the ZBA. He was joined by Laura Maillet, owner of Everything Essential.

The proposed building would have a 2,920 square foot footprint with the salon/spa occupying the first floor and office space on the second floor which would be offered as leased office space. The project would use an existing driveway at the parcel and would also leverage an existing detention pond.

Several features of the proposed development would infringe on the 50-foot landscape buffer. The largest impact would be from the parking lot which would encroach 34 feet into the buffer. The building itself including a patio/farmer's porch and roof overhang that would protrude just over 19 feet into the buffer. A rear walkway, bulkhead and stairs that serve as a service entrance and emergency exit would have smaller buffer impacts. The farmer's porch would be used in good weather months to provide an area for wedding parties to relax while waiting to get their pre-wedding services done.

Routhier shared that they plan to orient the new building and parking lot so that the rear of the building faces Kendallwood Condominiums with the parking lot on the front side of the building to shield the residential area from noise related to cars going in and out of the lot.

Addressing the specific requirements that must be met to grant a variance, the application stated that they planned to build a six-foot-high privacy fence and maintain as many trees as possible to obscure the view of the development from residents in Kendallwood.

The application went on to contend that the proposed use would have less impact on the neighborhood than other projects that might want to use that site. Further, the lot is in a transition area between residential and commercial, so building this type of project provides a reasonable transition between the two areas.

Lastly, the application pointed out that the features of the property make it a challenge to develop. The proposed use is one that can largely fit within the constraints imposed by zoning and site plan regulations if the variance were granted.

The board had questions about the number of parking spaces the business needed. After some back and forth with Routhier and the applicant, the board arrived at a need of 20 parking spaces for the salon/spa customers alone. The plan calls for 26 parking spaces. Londonderry regulations require 23 spaces based solely on the building size.

The board wondered if that would be enough spots when taking into account the needs of the leased offices. Routhier stated that they would have an easement for the adjacent lot for six more spaces. Vice Chair Jacqueline Benard clarified that this is possible as long as one owner owns both lots, but if the second lot were sold, then they may not have access to those six spots.

During public comment abutter Sharon Reed described a drainage problem that exists today, wondering if anything would be done about it as part of this project. Routhier said that nothing was planned, but that they would be sure not to make the issue any worse. Reed also thanked the developer for trying to take into account the concerns of the abutters. Nobody from the public spoke in opposition to the variance.

In 2015, the Planning Board approved plans on this site for Cabonnay, a restaurant and wine house that was ultimately built in Manchester after the owner decided to locate their business there instead.

Vice Chair Jacqueline Benard asked what the business would do for the wedding parties if the patio area were not allowed. Maillet stated that they would host them indoors in a more cramped space as they do now, but that her preference was to offer a better experience.

Ultimately, the variance was approved 3-2 with Benard and Chair Neil Dunn voting against and members Brunelle, Berardino and Tirabassi voting in favor. Those voting against expressed concern with the size of the building relative to the lot size, as well as the size of the parking lot.

A Day of Remembering

In the town commons of New Hampshire, the statue of a Civil War soldier is a sight we often take for granted. But a vestige of that war remains part of our lives today, as we mark the occasion of Memorial Day this coming Monday. Memorial Day was officially proclaimed and observed in 1868 by General John Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, as a time when flowers were placed on the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery.

Evidence of an even earlier day of remembrance comes from records of the decoration of Confederate soldiers' graves by women's groups in the South before the end of the Civil War. By 1890, the day was recognized by all northern states, while the South honored its dead on a separate date.

Then came World War I, and the day changed to a time of remembrance throughout the country for all who gave their lives in military service to the United States. Many more wars have taken the lives of American servicemen and women since then, including the current wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. But even with the present-day fighting, it's easy to look at Memorial Day as merely another chance for a three-day weekend, an extra day off from work and school, a time for barbecues and mowing the lawn and planting the flower garden.

We suggest a different focus. Those Civil War statues, and the old cemeteries where tiny American flags stand vigil by graves, are visual reminders that thousands of lives have been given in the name of their nation's service and more are at risk today. Memorial Day is a good time to think about what those familiar objects stand for. Ceremonies in our towns on Monday will center on the cemeteries and the statues, on the flags and the wreaths.

This Memorial Day, we encourage you to take time from your busy lives and your extra day of leisure to remember, and to thank those who have made the ultimate sacrifice, as well as those who stand ready to do so today. And let us hope that sacrifice will someday no longer be necessary.

Goals

a fair amount of their workers are working in Pettengill who live within the Manchester borders. "This could entice other businesses to come to Pettengill as well," Combes said. Chairman John Farrell made the recommendation for a meeting with the mayor of Manchester to further the idea of expanding bus access.

Vice-Chairman Joe Green's goal is to continue working on a HUD (Housing Urban Development) sponsored senior housing project. Kevin Smith gave an update on how things are going with the project currently. "It's all taking longer than we had hoped it would and it's not through any fault of the developer. It's the final remediation of the site. We think we have a final plan approved through DES, but until that site is fully remediated, only until then can the developer take over the site and start moving forward." Smith said. According to Smith, the developer is hoping to get in there sometime this summer, but must wait until the site is remediated.

Chairman Farrell and Councilor Jim Butler shared the same goal in that they would like to bring back the program of "Londonderry Leadership" in which taxpayers can learn about how the town government works and how the various committees in town work.

"This may build our succession plan to be even stronger," Farrell said. The idea behind bringing this program back is so residents and businesses can understand the "why" of the decisions the council makes. The Town Council was happy with their goals going forward and looks to future to get citizens more involved in town/local government.

allow the building to remain 25 feet from the roadway.

Jacquelyn Phillips joined by her father Mark Phillips, made the case that they should be allowed to rebuild their business at its current 347 Rockingham Road location. For the immediate term, they are looking to rebuild on the same footprint.

She shared that since the 1950s the site has been used for commercial auto-related uses including sales and service, so rebuilding for that same use would not alter the character of the surrounding area. Nor would granting of the waiver negatively impact any abutter's property value. She shared that failure to grant the variance would create an unnecessary hardship because the business will not be able to operate otherwise.

She also shared that due to a redrawing of the Manchester-Londonderry border in 1981, the property is roughly half in Londonderry and half in Manchester. Her contention was that this complicates other potential uses of the property. The Manchester portion of the property is zoned industrial.

During public comment, three residents voiced their support for granting the variance, highlighting L-Town Garage's long-time presence in town, their history of contributing to the community and the hardship of not being able to operate their business.

Member Suzanne Brunelle noted, "It appears the lot is sufficiently large that you could move it back and comply. Is that true or not?" Phillips responded, "We could, but some of my understanding is this would require going into a full site plan which we're not necessarily opposed to...we're going to have to do a site plan [eventually], but we're just trying to get our doors back open." Phillips said that eventually they want to expand at the location but would like to plan that after they get the business running again.

In the end, the ZBA granted the variance on a 5-0 vote noting the unique special conditions of the property, the lack of negative impact to the community and abutters and the long-term existence of similar businesses on this property.

Historical Society Hosts Antique Roadshow-Like Event

The Parmenter Barn at the Londonderry Historical Society was filled with antique owners hoping their possessions might be of significant value on Sunday afternoon, May 20. Daniel F. Reidy, an antique appraiser and auctioneer, went through over 60 items that attendees brought in and with a nominal fee was charged for each item and all the proceeds went to the reassembly efforts of the Rev. William Morrison House. The odd duck of the day was the second to last item that was registered for appraisal and is pictured on the Londonderry Historical Society Facebook page. A true "what IS It?" item found in a barn - the item stumped everyone.

lion dollars", and we had a million dollars? It's the taxpayer's money," Farrell said. "I believe the recommendation of this council would be to engage our attorney to go to court and release that money." Wilson and Farrell went back and forth for several minutes with Wilson arguing that the school district should not have paid the money towards the shortfall. "That rainy day fund was calculated on 7% of the school district's money," Wilson said. Farrell engaged him further telling him that is not what the money is for.

"They are $440,000 short. Had we not let the clock tick, we could have sent a supplemental tax bill, but we chose not to. We let the clock tick and we changed our policy to not burden the taxpayer further." Farrell responded. Chairman Farrell then gave Wilson a chance to ask one more question before moving on. Wilson asked the council if they thought it was fair to put the school district in a position that at one point in time they thought they had some use of the rainy day fund and a day later they have zero dollars of that fund. Farrell told Wilson that they will no longer be holding money for the school district. They (the town) made a policy change and it is not the school district's money. It is the taxpayer's money and is managed by the municipality.

Councilor Tom Dolan also stepped in to say that the town encourages the school to be financially responsible and put money aside at the end of every year to build up money to allocate into the undesignated fund balance. "The school district can take financial measures to put aside money and save up," Dolan said. Chairman Farrell then put an end to the debate, saying that they had gone well over the five minute threshold. "I appreciate your comments, but we're not going to agree," Farrell told Wilson.

Londonderry High Student Completes Solar Array Project

NOELLE TARDIFF
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Back in 1972, when Londonderry High School was first built, renewable energy, efficiency, and carbon neutrality weren't necessarily taken into account. Even to this day, 50 percent of the energy produced in New Hampshire is nuclear. Changing the way we use and produce energy is essential, and Londonderry High School's senior class president, Jeff Cieslikowski, is helping his school to begin doing so with a small-scale solar array.

Last year, Cieslikowski was inspired by his AP Environmental Science teacher, Daniel Grant, to create a project that would take the first steps in making the school as energy efficient and carbon-neutral as possible. While students have the option to complete an official senior project, Cieslikowski felt that the school's criteria for it was not exactly relevant to what he wanted to do. So, he chose instead to pursue his own project.

Last May, after speaking with Principal Jason Parent, it was recommended that Cieslikowski reach out to Buildings and Grounds Director, Chuck Zappala, for help with the project. A month later, Cieslikowski began reaching out to as many as 30 different solar companies in search of a donation of used solar panels. Only one gave him a call back, only to tell him that donating the panels would be impossible.

By December, Cieslikowski thought that he may have to change his idea and create a compost bin at the school instead. "This would have been fine," he explained, "but it would have required a lot of maintenance and wouldn't have given back to the community the way I wanted the project to."

All while doing his best to make his project take off, Cieslikowski was busy applying to and being interviewed by colleges. During his interview with a Yale graduate student - where he will be attending in the fall as a physics major - he spoke about the project and his hope to have solar panels donated to the school. The student interviewing him happened to be a sustainability major, and had previously worked at Stonyfield. On a whim, the student reached out to Stonyfield, and the company offered to donate eight of their old panels to Cieslikowski; he was able to get them in March of this year after months of contract negotiation.

"We put the array on the building this week! Six of the eight are up now," Cieslikowski said. "I'm also hoping to create a display case in the lobby that will show how much energy is being saved over time, as well as a few posters about sustainability and renewable energy."

"It sounds childish, but one of my favorite quotes is from the Lorax: 'Unless someone like you cares a whole awful lot, nothing is going to get better. It's not,'" Cieslikowski laughed. "You have to be willing to take the steps on your own to make a change."

While only $500 will be saved by the school each year by using the panels, Cieslikowski explained that the project wasn't about money: it was about starting a conversation. "While my portion of the project is coming to a close, I hope that other individuals will continue to talk and create similar projects," he said. "This is the beginning of a new age of sustainability at the school."

After working with Cieslikowski on this project, Zappala has nothing but good things to say about him. "In the 30 years that I've worked here, I've probably met thousands of students," he said. "Jeff is so impressive, low-key, involved, and has just the best personality. We're all very happy for him."

Zappala was happy to see this project take off as well, as he had already commissioned a study with the school for more renewable energy in the past.

With the help one of the school's maintenance employees, Bob Lees, electrician Brian Costigan, and Zappala, Cieslikowski was able to make his idea a reality. Although it's a small-scale project for now, it will bring awareness to an important issue, and hopefully, it will evolve with advancements in technology in order to make the community a more efficient and sustainable place.

Etz Hayim Synagogue Hopes to Increase Accessibility

NOELLE TARDIFF
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Upon entering the Etz Hayim Synagogue, which serves the area from Derry, it is a welcoming and inclusive space for people of all religions and backgrounds. Rabbi Peter Levy has a presence about him that is undeniably friendly and intelligent, and he is passionate about his role and his community. However, it is becoming increasingly difficult for him to ascend the stairs of the building's bema, as he uses a wheelchair due to multiple sclerosis. The bema is currently the only part of the building that is not accessible for all, and the synagogue is looking to change that by building a ramp.

Dina Chaitowitz, the synagogue's President of the Board of Directors, started a Go Fund Me donation page back in April to help get the project started, and the congregation's Building Committee has even offered to build the ramp. Over $200 has been raised so far thanks to various donors, but more money is still needed in order for the synagogue to become accessible to all of its guests during events and religious services.

In the four years that Rabbi Levy has been at the synagogue, the only addition to the bema that has been made to increase accessibility was two years ago, when a set of railings was installed. He explained that he wasn't the first to use them, and that congregation members who are not in wheelchairs are in need of the ramp as well.

"Grandparents are often unable to come up the bema during Bar and Bat Mitzvahs services," explained Rabbi Levy. "People are living longer now and are more functional in their communities, so we're trying to make the space available for everyone."

Members of this congregation hail not only from Derry, but surrounding communities such as Nashua, Salem, Hampstead, Chester, and more. In partnership with the Church Of Transfiguration next door, the synagogue works hard to serve the community at large, as Derry is a large interfaith community. Each month, their Elijah's Table program provides a free hot meal for everyone in attendance, regardless of their faith.

"I don't think people realize all that we do," said Rabbi Levy. "People may not realize we're here, but they would realize if we weren't."

the Holocaust" at the synagogue, and Chaitowitz explained that if a performer had been in a wheelchair or had other mobility limitations, he or she would not have been able to make it onto the bema – they use this space as a stage when guests speak or perform.

"We have a lot of guest lecturers as a part of our educational programs," she said, "and not having an accessible space limits our ability to invite certain speakers."

Rabbi Levy emphasized that building the ramp will simply make the space "more inclusive, open, and welcoming. Sacred spaces should be open and accessible to everyone."

Other than the Go Fund Me donation page, there have been no official fundraisers for the building of the ramp. Congregants can realistically only donate so much, and the fundraisers that they do hold help to benefit the synagogue as a whole.

"I'd love for it to be built tomorrow!" said Rabbi Levy. "As soon as possible." In order to make increased accessibility a reality, the synagogue will need help from the community it so proudly serves. To donate to the Etz Hayim Synagogue's Go Fund Me page, visit www.gofundme.com/weneedaramp, or contact the synagogue directly at 603-432-0004.

State Makes May the Month of Debunking Lyme Myths

MELISSA BETH RUIZ
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The month of May brings with it a feeling of happiness and excitement. With its green trees, vibrant flowers, and hours of sunlight, it has often been referred to as the unofficial start of Summer. Though in recent years, it has also become the official start (albeit belated) of tick season.

On Friday, May 18, Governor Sununu declared the Month of May the official awareness month for Lyme Disease in New Hampshire, although steps have been taken to promote the month for its awareness since 2015. And while the campaign has worked hard these past few years to highlight the seriousness of the illness, it seems the public has also been misled.

According to David Hunter, leader of the Greater Manchester Lyme Disease Support Group, there has been a great deal of misinformation about the often-talked about disease, and even more misdiagnoses as a result.

"It's always good as you're entering into tick and lyme season to highlight the dangers and the need to take precautions," said Hunter. "But I do worry sometimes that as the media picks up and promotes it, it causes the public to...turn their ears off because it's all been (said) before, so I'm not sure they understand the full risks involved."

One widely-accepted myth surrounding the disease includes the "24-36 rule," or the notion that a tick typically has to be attached and feeding on a host for 24 to 36 hours in order to transmit the lyme disease bacteria. Frighteningly, the reality is it that the window is significantly smaller than what is commonly known; only about an hour or two, says Hunter, which is why he so strongly advocates for thorough tick checks and for immediate, proactive medical attention.

Hunter stated that the definitive times to see a doctor are when an identifiable "bullseye" rash appears, or if any flu-like symptoms occur. However, Hunter advises to take certain physicians' advice with a grain of salt when it comes to any diagnoses.

"Unfortunately, the establishment puts faith in blood test that aren't reliable," Hunter explained.

To come up with a diagnosis for Lyme Disease, a two-step laboratory testing process must occur, says the CDC. The first in the series is an EIA test, or an Enzyme Immunoassay test, to determine if the antibodies against Lyme disease bacteria are present in the blood. If this test comes back negative, no further testing is performed. However, should this test come back positive, a Western Blot test will be administered to confirm the presence of the Lyme Disease infection. While this is the widely accepted procedure for diagnosis, according to Hunter, it is not the reliable one.

"You're lucky if (the EIA) test is 30% reliable," Hunter stated. "And if they do get positive and go to the Western Blot, you're lucky if it's 50% reliable."

Hunter went on to explain that Lyme Disease is determined through clinical diagnosis, and because of its complexity it is best to seek the services of a "Lyme-literate" physician, or one whom understands the full extent of the disease and is able to make an affirmative diagnosis based on history and symptoms.

In recent years, the spread of Lyme Disease has grown to epidemic level. Hunter explained that there were several possibilities for this.

During times of heavy acorn production, the forest rodent population booms as well, as that is a popular food source for the creatures, said Hunter. The food chain continues as nymphal ticks obtain their blood meals from the chipmunks, mice, and squirrels, all animals that are carriers of the lyme disease bacteria, and as the ticks mature they move on to bigger hosts, humans being among them.

Mammals are not the only source of food for the infectious insects. Hunter also stated that the growing epidemic can be traced to the migratory bird population, as the ticks feed from the winged creatures and thus are carried far and wide, spreading the disease with them.

Environmental conditions have a big part to play, said Hunter. Heavy winters and wet springs create the ideal living conditions for ticks, which thrive in moisture and shade. With all of these conditions combined, along with the disease having the same symptoms as a host of other ailments making it easy to misdiagnose, the perfect storm for the spread of Lyme Disease is created.

While just about all are aware of the prevalence of lyme disease, many may not be as informed of the other just as debilitating tick-borne illnesses, which can often be contracted at the same time from the same parasite. Bacteria such as Babesia, Ehrlichia, and Bartonella to name a few often go undetected as the spirochetes which cause Lyme Disease are focused on, said Hunter. Furthermore, the presence of these underlying bacteria not only work to weaken the host, but also to protect the lyme disease bacteria, often keeping people sick despite even aggressive treatment of the condition.

Lyme disease is debilitating, to say the least, but as unsettling as the boom in tick population and spread of disease are, prevention and early treatment are not impossible.

Most are aware of the importance of establishing the routine of checking for ticks after outdoor activity, and spraying repellents to keep them at bay. However, many are not so keen to dress the part (with long sleeves, pants and hats), and a growing number are concerned with the adverse affects keeping them and their families safe from tick-borne diseases might have on the environment. For those people, Hunter offers solutions.

Hunter explained that there is a natural repellent called Permethrin, usually used to treat scabies and lice, which is effective in repelling ticks. He also mentioned that there are clothes made with the substance in the fibers, and it lasts for several washes, with brands including "Insect Shield" and "Bugsaway." He also gave a friendly reminder to stay away from the edges of forests and brush, and urged people to stay out of the shade this summer, as that is where ticks prefer to hide.

If all else fails, and a bite occurs, or if a rash and/or flu-like symptoms occur, Hunter stressed the importance of seeking the attention of a Lyme-literate doctor as soon as possible, and that is where the services of the Greater Manchester Lyme Disease Support Group come in.

"I'm no doctor," Hunter said. "And I'm not playing doctor, I'm just referring people to good sources."

The Greater Manchester Lyme Disease Support Group meets every third Wednesday at 6:30pm at the Bedford Presbyterian Church, located at 4 Church Rd in Bedford, NH. For those currently suffering from lyme disease or other tick-borne infections, or who know someone who is, and are seeking more information on Lyme-literate doctors and resources, David Hunter can be reached at (603) 606-2800. For further reading from lyme-literate sources on lyme disease and other tick-borne infections, visit www.ilads.org.

Thousands of toys were laid out for shoppers at Mathew Thornton Elementary School during the annual Londonderry Women's Club Toy Swap. The event is a major fund raising effort for the club which provides scholarships to area students and give to local charities. The toys are collected from residents by the club in the morning, laid out, and sold through the day, and a third of the selling price goes to the club. ## Londonderry High Track and Field Squads Play Host Twice

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry High School boys' and girls' track and field squads got to compete within the friendly confines of their own Larry Martin complex not once but twice last week, with each playing host to two opponents in tri-meets on Wednesday, May 16 before hosting their Seventh Annual Londonderry Track and Field Invitational on Saturday the 19th.

But the locals' level of success in familiar territory was only fair to middling, especially in the tri-meet against those arch-rivals from Pinkerton Academy and the squads from Exeter High School.

GIRLS

The three-team meet brought with it some tremendously mixed emotions for the girls, who finished second to Pinkerton (89 points) with 60 points but ahead of Exeter's total of 53. However, the squad was dealt a major loss when junior multi-event standout Maddie Croteau suffered a severe ankle injury during warm-ups and had to be taken from Wednesday's event by emergency medical personnel.

The Lancer effort was paced by another outstanding junior pole-vaulter and gymnast - Suzie Moore - who finished first with a leap of 9 feet, 6 inches. Her teammate Gianna DelViscovo was second with a jump of 8'. The Londonderry girls also got a win from Kaylie Longua in the long jump (15'8").

The hosts took second, third, and fourth in the 200-meter dash thanks to the efforts of Jess Brien, Longua, and Erica Waters respectively, and other second places came from Seana Kelly in the 100-meter hurdles, Brien in the high jump, Akolam Wambu in both the shot put and the discus, and the squad's 4x100 and 4x400 relay quartets.

Other thirds were snared by Nikki Longua in the 100 hurdles and Paige Velie in the discus.

At Saturday's invitational - which was not a team-scored competition - Moore once again won the pole vault (8'6") and the Lady Lancers bagged seconds in the 4x100 and the 4x800.

Other top-six finishes were registered by Kaylie

Longua in the long jump (third), Wambu in the discus (fifth), Kelly in the 100 hurdles (sixth), and Ashley Griffin in the pole vault (sixth).

BOYS

In their three-team battle with Pinkerton and Exeter, the Lancer males tallied some 47 points to place well behind powerful PA (122.5) but just behind the Blue Hawks (50.5).

Event victories were notched by Khalique Bagley in the 100 (11.59), Will Heenan in the 800-meter run (2 minutes, 04.29 seconds), Patrick Hagearty in the shot (48'2"), and the squad's 4x400 relay crew (3:39.47).

Other scoring performances came from Justin Cassidy in the 100 (second), Hagearty in the discus (second), and Matt Griffin and Kerry Daley in the 3,200-meter run (second and third).

At the invitational, the LHS guys had Hagearty win the discus (137'9") and take second in the shot, their 4x100 and 4x400 relay quartets take thirds, Bagley bag fourth in the 200 dash, and Heenan come in sixth in the 1,600.

The two Londonderry High contingents will be testing their mettle against all of Division I this Friday at the D-I state meet, which will be held at Merrimack High.

White-Hot LHS Softball Crew Advances its Winning Streak

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

It's not a bright idea to face off with the Londonderry High softball squad right now. Nor has it been for more than a month.

Lancers' coach Wayne MacDougall has seen his talented and determined charges - who are seeking their program's very first state championship this spring - win every single contest they've played since way back on April 13. The locals' lone loss came in a 6-2 decision to Winnacunnet of Hampton that day, and the LHS contingent then ripped off 14 consecutive victories coming into this week.

Consecutive victories numbers 13 and 14 - which made the Lady Lancers a Division I best 15-1 overall - came against Manchester Central and Dover last week.

Londonderry got another stellar pitching performance from senior Ila

Brown in a 2-0 edging of Manchester Central in the Queen City last Wednesday, May 16. It was the local squad's fifth shutout of the season.

"Central played us tough, but honestly we gain more out of a 2-0 game than a blowout," said MacDougall. "Ila was really the difference, pitching a five-hitter and striking out 13."

Brown's fellow senior standout Loey Misiaszek powered her team's offense by smacking three hits in four trips to the plate, and she drove in both of the Lady Lancers' runs. Gia Komst and Miranda Galan each contributed two hits to the cause.

The Lancers were at home against Dover the next afternoon, and they were embroiled in another tight game with that opponent before the hosts busted things wide open late.

"Dover also played us tough, and we were leading by only two at 5-3 going into the sixth when we plated five more," said MacDougall. "Ila again came up big, pitching a four-hitter and striking out 11."

Brown contributed in a big way to the offense, lacing three hits. Emily Nelson contributed three hits and drove in two runs, Misiaszek and Alivia Proulx each had two hits and drove in two team-

LHS Volleyball Crew Battles

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

While victories have proven to be tough to come by for the Londonderry High boys' volleyball squad this spring, the team can take pride in the fact that they've shown plenty of fight.

The Lancers entered their Wednesday, May 16 road match at Goffstown High School facing an opponent which had gone 5-1 in its previous six matches. And the team pushed the Grizzlies right to the wall before being dealt a 3-2 defeat.

The 2-9 Londonderry crew then entered this week facing a Monday home match against a Coe-Brown Northwood team that had a 4-9 record and dropped three of its last four matches. So Londonderry's third match victory of the 2018 campaign seemed like a possibility going in. Despite giving Coe-Brown a real battle the Lancers fell by a 3-2 match count.

mates, and Cassidy Raza and Nina Perry were each good for two hits as well.

Then this past Monday the locals busied themselves with looking for their 15th straight win against a visiting Keene crew which came in at a very solid 11-6.

The Lancer juggernaut remained unbeatable by bashing the Blackbirds by a lopsided, 10-1 count.

Lady Lancer Lax Crew Falls To Exeter and Merrimack

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

A promising 2018 season has unfortunately turned into a battle with frustration for the Londonderry High girls' lacrosse squad.

The Lady Lancers went a very decent 3-2 in their first five matches of the campaign. However, coach Scott Walden's contingent then won just two of its next 10 matches in falling to 5-10 in tough Division I.

The locals had won just one of their last seven contests coming into this week, and that tough run included tight losses to both Exeter and Merrimack last week.

Londonderry was bested by a 9-7 tally by the host Exeter High Lady Blue Hawks on the seacoast last Wednesday, May 16. The hosts became 9-5 with that slim success, having won three of their last four matches.

The Lady Lancers then went head to head with a talented Merrimack High bunch in Londonderry two afternoons later and dropped a 10-8 decision despite a four-goal game from veteran standout Allie Marsh.

Grace Chicko contributed a three-point performance with two goals and one assist, and Kate-lynn Nartiff and Sarah Duarte were both good for single scores in a losing effort. Goalie Hannah Paradis turned aside some nine Merrimack shots.

The locals then got the weekend off from competitive play, to which they returned this Tuesday the 22nd with a home contest against a Nashua South crew which came in having gone an excellent 4-1 in its last five matches. That game was played after The Londonderry Times went to press.

In the wake of that match with South's Lady Purple Panthers, the scuffling Lady Lancers were to close out their regular season with road matches at Hanover and then Salem later in the week.

Boys' Tennis Crew Finishes Campaign at 4-10

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

There were certainly reasons for excitement within the Londonderry High boys' tennis team's ranks when that determined and skilled crew bagged victories in four of its first six matches of the 2018 campaign.

However, a key loss at the top of its player ladder cost coach Janice Norwesh's squad dearly, and the locals ended up dropping all of their final eight matches of the campaign, which ended last Friday - May 18 - with a defeat over in Keene.

The host Keene High Blackbirds, who went on a pleasing little run of victories at the close of their season after scuffling earlier, bagged an 8-1 victory over their guests.

Londonderry received its lone victory at number four singles, where battle-tested veteran Tyler Cullen notched a hard-fought 8-6 success. Number five singles man Ben Doris was narrowly bested in his battle, falling 7-9 despite a gutsy effort.

"Keene got the better of us today, winning on eight of the nine courts. But I couldn't be more proud of senior captain Tyler Cullen for closing out his last high school match with an 8-6 win, which matches his singles record for the season," said coach Norwesh. "My other senior, captain Ryan Leo, also had a great season, winning almost half of his matches. They are the first two players of mine to go through all four years with me. I wish them both bright futures, with Tyler attending St. Anselm and Ryan going on to the University of Vermont."

The veteran Londonderry High coach added, "We finished up at 4-10, the same as last year. But losing our number one (skilled junior Cam Ness) for the last 11 matches really took its toll on our small, eight-man team. But as always, my boys improved like they do every year. What more could a coach ask for?"

LHS Baseball Squad Hits Its Stride, Climbs Back Up Over .500

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Baseball players - like a great many athletes - are superstitious. So nobody wants to do or say anything which might bring a dreaded 'jinx' into the picture. However, it appears pretty safe to say that the Londonderry High School baseball squad has turned its roller-coaster of a 2018 campaign around.

The Lancers, who went 3-7 in their first 10 games of 2018, then went 6-1 in their next seven and won four in a row including a 2-1 edging of Manchester Central, a 14-1 hammering of Trinity of Manchester, and a solid 5-2 success against Dover last week.

In the pitcher's duel with Central in Londonderry last Wednesday, May 16, Anthony Pirolli did masterful work for his side in besting the visiting Little Green.

Pirolli held the visitors to just three hits and two walks while striking out nine would-be hitters in an excellent performance.

"Anthony had full rest and came out in a dominating fashion today," said coach Brent Demas. "He had all his pitches working and he needed them today as we couldn't get the offense going. It's good to see the adjustments made by Pirolli are really paying off."

Central pitcher Declan Knieriem also limited Londonderry to a paltry three hits, with veteran Ricky Perry doing some important base-running and playing some vital defense for the locals.

In the third inning, Perry stole consecutive bases and was then driven home with the game's first run by Reece Manor. And the hosts got their second run in the fourth when Anthony Ferraro forced a throwing error while stealing third base.

And Perry flashed the leather out in center field in the seventh in helping his squad preserve its tight victory.

"With the tying run on third and two outs, the batter for Central lined a shot up the middle that looked to be destined for a big hit to tie the game. Perry was playing the ball perfectly and came in to snag the ball for the final out of the game. Huge play," said coach Demas.

The next day at home against Trinity, pitcher Dakota Johnson made his second consecutive strong appearance by pitching quite well against the Pioneers in a 14-1 walloping.

"Dak got the start and went five innings giving up five hits, striking out five, and giving up one earned run. He was strong throughout, mixing his pitches and maintaining focus," said coach Demas.

Offensively, the locals had Shane McNamara shake the rust off from his injury by lacing three hits, driving in three big runs, and scoring two of them.

"We'll be tough to handle if he is back," said the LHS coach.

The victors also got two hits and three RBI from Anthony Ferraro, two safeties, two runs scored, and two stolen bases from Nate Sullivan, two hits, three RBI, and two steals from Perry, and a pair of runs batted in from Tyler Kayo.

Then, the extremely busy Lancers managed to stay right in their groove through a third straight day which included a bus ride over to Dover and the production of a solid,

5-2 win.

This time, Reece Manor was the stalwart on the mound as he turned in his second consecutive complete-game performance.

"Reece wasn't as sharp as he normally is, but as a testament to his ability he was able to keep a good Division I offense at bay with the effort," said Demas.

The Lancer hurler surrendered just five hits, struck out five, and only walked one in his route-going effort. He was helped out by some stellar defensive plays by left fielder Andy Ross and second baseman Brandon Fish.

At the plate, the locals continued to show their growing confidence. They leaped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning and never had any serious reason to look back.

McNamara slashed two more hits and drove in two teammates, Sullivan was good for two hits and a run, and Jake Bolduc bashed two hits, scored once, and swiped two bases.

After a competitive break of three days, the Lancers were right back at it - way out in Keene - this past Monday with a big game against a Keene High Blackbirds' bunch which boasted an identical 9-8 record and was jockeying with Londonderry for position in the Division I standings.

And the Lancers grabbed the upper hand in that jockeying competition, throttling Keene's Blackbird bunch by a 9-2 tally to remain one of the hottest squads in all of Division I.

Lady Lancer Tennis Crew Finishes its 2018 Season

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry High School girls' tennis squad closed out its 2018 regular season as a whole - last week with an up and a down to end a pretty up-and-down campaign.

The Lady Lancers got trampled by a 9-0 tally by the undefeated Bedford High Lady Bulldogs in Bedford last Wednesday, May 16, but they rebounded beautifully from that humbling experience the very next day by downing the Timberlane Regional Lady Owls of Plaistow by a 5-4 tally in Londonderry.

In that final match, the locals powered their way to four lopsided singles victories thanks to the efforts of Andrea Brenner (8-2), Rachel Cook (8-2), Amanda Wells (8-2), and Emily Hatem (8-1). And the hosts assured themselves of the match win when their top doubles tandem of Brenner and Cook won 8-1.

Alas, the Lady Lancers' final 3-8 record wasn't quite good enough for them to finish among the top eight teams and advance to tourney play, and their uniforms will go into mothballs until 2019.

Lancer Laxmen Build Up a Head of Steam as Tournament Nears

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Since having struggles against some of the top squads in Division I during a span covering April 26 to May 7, the Londonderry High boys' lacrosse squad has done little more than win and win, and then win a bit more.

First-year coach Roger Sampson's Lancers were looking upwards at the .500 mark a few weeks ago, but after reeling off four victories in five recent matches - including a pleasing run of three consecutive successes - the LHS contingent put itself well over .500 with the state tournament looming just ahead.

Included in that three-game winning streak - which made coach Samp-son's squad a solid 9-6 in tough D-I - were trouncings of Nashua North and Souhegan at LHS late last week.

Londonderry pummeled North's Titans by a 20-8 tally on Thursday, May 17, with Jeff Wiedenfeld pacing the offensive charge with a six-point effort which included five goals and one assist.

Mike McAlister contributed three goals and a helper, Anthony Federico whipped three shots home, Aidan Dennis, Mason Smith, and Derek Felix each potted two goals, Jake Holland was good for a goal and two assists, and Nate Andrews bagged a goal and a helper. Goalie Ross Carroll made 10 saves his contribution to the team success.

The locals were then back on their home pitch on Saturday morning - before the rains came - handing the visiting Souhegan High Sabers from Amherst a humbling 17-4 defeat.

Londonderry netted the only five goals scored in the first quarter and then outscored its guest by a 3-1 tally in the second period to grasp a commanding 8-1 advantage at the half.

Sampson's stalwarts then outscored the Sabers by a 9-3 margin in the second half to reach the final match score of 17-4.

Lots and lots of Lancers got into the scoring act that morning, with the charge being led by McAlister and his three goals.

Cole Keegan was good for two tallies and two assists, Federico and Andrews each scored twice, Holland and Derek Mower each managed a goal and a helper, and single scores came out of the sticks of Wiedenfeld, Dennis, Smith, Ryan O'Neill, and James Cranmer. Keeper Carroll turned aside some eight shots.

With its modest winning streak rolling, the LHS crew then entered this week looking at a Monday road match with a struggling Merrimack contingent which had only managed two wins coming into play.

And Londonderry kept its winning ways in gear by besting the host Tomahawks by a fairly close, 12-9 tally.

Ex-Lancers Headed to the Division III Baseball World Series

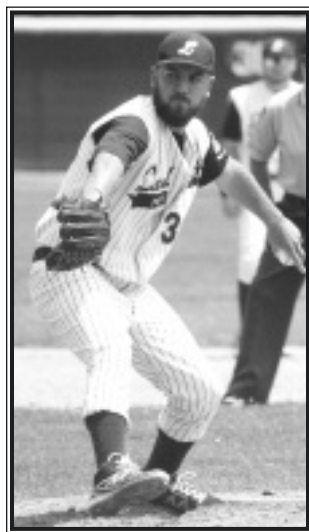

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Former Londonderry High baseball stalwarts Nick Musto and Jonny Meskell and their college teammates have gotten themselves qualified to play in the 2018 National Junior College Athletic Association Division III World Series later this week in Tennessee.

Musto and Meskell have both made significant contributions to the successes of coach Jeff Mejia's Northern Essex Community College hardball squad from Haverhill, Mass. this spring, and those successes have recently included dramatic Region 21 and District F championships which garnered them the trip to the world series in Greenville, Tn., starting on Saturday, May 26. The Northern Essex squad's opponent there that day had yet to be named at Londonderry Times press time.

Jonny Meskell

The two LHS grads, who both played for coach Brent Demas' 2014 Division I state title-winning Lancer crew, have helped the Northern Essex Knights post a fine 26-14 record in 40 contests thus far.

Sophomore pitcher Musto has toed the rubber in 10 games for the Knights thus far, posting a 4-2 record and hurling some 27 1/3 innings.

Freshman infielder Meskell has seen action in 21 games, hitting at a .269 clip with 12 runs batted in and 17 runs scored.

The Knights played in the Region 21 championships over Mother's Day weekend and bested three opponents, and those successes included an extra-inning victory over Quinsigamond in which lefty Musto pitched two superb innings of relief - under high-pressure conditions - with the score knotted up at 4-4.

Then last weekend the Knights had to beat a familiar Suffolk County, NY contingent not just once but twice to advance to the world series, and they managed that feat in a 9-0 shutout and then a dramatic, come-backing 7-5 victory.
