Editorial Happy Read Across America Month

March is marked in many local schools as Read Across America month, in celebration of children's author Dr. Theodor Geisel, better known to the world as, Dr. Seuss. Dr. Seuss's birthday was March 2nd, but month long celebrations are taking place all over. True to the famed children's author, school activities focus on reading.

Read Across America was created by the National Education Association, no matter what people think of Dr. Seuss, we hope everyone can agree on the importance of reading, and of reading to children early and often. Whether it's dressing up as the Cat in the Hat, or creating green eggs and ham for breakfast. By being a "celebrity reader" in a local elementary school, or just cuddling up to your child, or grandchild to read a bedtime story, Read Across America reminds us of the importance of what could easily become a lost art in the rush of life today.

Reading is an important factor in future success. When a child has the ability and the desire to read they have the ability to change the world through their words and visions. Most of us take our ability to read for granted and don't remember how we learned to, but we use the skill everyday.

Research shows that kids who spend time reading recreationally perform better in school, and whether it's by reading traffic signs or employment applications, college textbooks or exam questions, reading follows us through our lives.

Read Across America isn't just for kids. There is great enjoyment to be had from sitting by a warm fire or relaxing by a pool and letting a good book transport you to another world. If your child's asks you to spend a little extra time reading at home this week, go for it. In the midst of busy, out of control schedules. it will be time well spent. While you're at it, schedule a trip to the children's room at your local library. Seeing an entire building filled with books can open up yet another memorable reading experience for your youngster.

There is also great enjoyment to be had from learning something new from and informative nonfiction on your favorite figure or subject. Whatever the genre, there's nothing quite like getting lost in a good book, these habits start young.

Across America underscores the importance of the simple act of picking up a book and getting lost in its story. You can read on your phone, you can read on a computer, a paper and best of all, you can read a book.

And when you read to a child, you're building memories for both of you. As Dr. Seuss wrote, "You're never too old, too wacky, too wild, to pickup a book and read to a child.

Dear readers,

Now that my threeyear term as a Town Councilor has ended, I want to take a moment to share a few thoughts.

First, it was a great ry in that role and I want dignity. to thank everyone who supported me over the last three years.

I had a number of challenges to deal with during that brief term as Rule of Leadership: Leada councilor, but the biggest was the COVID-19 Pandemic.

Despite these unforeseen obstacles, I feel I made some positive changes for our town and it is my intend to stay involved and help to make more changes in the coming years.

I'd like to share a passage that I tried to stick to while I sat on the council:

to be a leader who leads from a place of humble cess, including those privilege versus a place of perceived right?

Many leaders seem to forget that leading others is more than anything else should be held in reverence. Being the leader means that you have been placed in a position to serve others.

Too often, I have seen leaders duck and cover, throw their people under the bus, throw their positional weight around, and instead of leading from a place of service, lead from a place of ego when things get rough.

"Public servants doing the best we can." I want to elaborate on this, because lately, this reality has been obscured by a handful of people who opt to explain decisions with which they have disagreed by suggesting Londonderry's public servants are not acting in good faith. I don't want to focus on or even respond to what these few people are saying. Instead, I want to talk about what we, as public servants, are doing. We work hard to make the best decisions we can for the community every day. Usually, I think, we get it right. Sometimes, we don't. But even when we make mistakes, it's because we're human, not because we are corrupt or incompetent as a small group apparently believe. I think the vast majority of residents recognize this, but unfortunately, the loudest voices at this moment seek chaos as an end in itself, and are employing conspiracy theories, name calling, and misinformation to drown out everyone else.

This is not who we are.

I would put our local government up against any in NH. At every level, Londonderry's officials and employees go above and beyond day in and day out. Evidence of this can be found in every town department and all around our great community. Many of you have experienced it firsthand. While there is plenty of room for debate and disagree-

Vice Chair, Jocelyn Muller, said for meats and dairy it's more to break down and leads to a lot of odors, which is backyard composts.

Concerns

Resident, Tara Miles, had two concerns about the election. One, that the weather impacted her ability to vote since she does not own a fourwheel drive vehicle, and the other was the fact that people were allowed to erect inappropriate signs opposing candidates and that the amount of signs being used were not maintained making for some very dirty looking roadsides.

Ann Chiampa also had issues with getting to and from the election, and needed to actually be pushed out of the LHS parking lot. She also noted that due to a power outage that lasted over a day, she wasn't able to communicate with anyone to find out where town warming stations were set up. She suggested to post this information well before storms arrive.

Following that, Town Moderator, Jonathan Kipp, addressed the board on the election.

He said that during the election they were trial testing new ballot processing machines and they conducted a post election audit on Thursday. March 16, which the Secretary of State's office deemed successful.

He reviewed the process used for whether or not to postpone the election.

Kipp said the process governed by state is statute that states, "If the National Weather Service issues a weather event warning applicable to a town on a date when an election is scheduled. which the moderator reasonably believes will cause the roads to be

Election Mess

To the editor, Stars in heaven, kudos, hip hip hooray for all the poll workers, shovelors, traffic directors, plowers, and ITT forced to come to work because of voting and found the parking lot to his office had not even been plowed).

The town moderator is not the one at fault for this f—up. The decision to not postpone the election is made in consultation with the town manager, fire chief, police chief, and I'm not sure but hopefully with public works.

You can bet your bottown board, official, or tom dollar all were under pressure from the town manager to not postpone. (He is the one who fired and eliminated the position prior to consulting with the town council as he is supposed to do and received no push back from the council. I'd say this speaks to autocracy) the moderator just calls what the group decided on.

To say that yesterday, the extent of this storm was not understood, is to say the 70 plus towns who did postpone theirs were far smarter to use another weather channel (is their a fox news channel for weather).

So, I go to vote and personnel (who were then to the town hall to speak to someone about the hate signs that have been posted next to Amy Filemore's. It is hard to believe that this action is permitted under the sign ordinance.

Well, you guessed it, the town hall is closed. The town manager felt that all the staff should be sent home due to the unsafe driving conditions. So that leaves the voters and the poll workers etc. to risk their necks.

Where is the town home manager, all comfy?

Maple Weekend Brings Folks to Peterson Sugar House

Local familes had the opportunity to experience how maple syrup is made in Londonderry as Peterson Farm opened its doors for Maple Weekend on Saturday and Sunday, March 18 and 19. Eric Turcotte and Anne Peterson gave tours, explained the process and shared stories about the farm's founder, Hank Peterson, who passed away in 2015. Families were also able to sample some of the maple syrup served on ice cream by local historial Ann Chiampa. Turcotte is breathing new life into the farm and making syrup by boiling sap from local maple trees in a recently upgraded evaporator.

After the Election

To the editor, Another nonpartisan election season is now behind us. Some are ready to pound their victory. Instead, I prefer to just say congratulations and "thanks".

Congratulations to those who won their respective races. It's difficult to step forward, spend some money campaigning, and display the energy to get involved. It is also time to say "thank you" for your service. Those that donate their time to the community to help fellow citizens are to be honored. Let's especially be thankful for recent service by Amy Finamore, Debra Paul, and Joe Green for serving in the most consequential roles on our community boards.

While some may talk of wins and losses, it's always a win when one serves their fellow citizens. And let's not forget the roles of others involved in the remaining races last week as well. Lastly I wish to commend Londonderry's army of volunteers and poll workers that are the backbone of our local government. You rock!

Thank you

To the editor,

I am thrilled to announce I have been elected as one of your new Budget Committee representatives. Thank you for all your support over the last month. I am honored and humbled to be able to serve you and the community for the next three years.

On Election Day, I could feel the overwhelming support despite the weather and driving conditions. It was incredible to have so many fellow residents approach me to provide encouragement and emphasize there support. Being my first time running for an elected position, I was uncertain what to expect, but you all blew my expectations out of the water.

It has been quite an experience over the last month, and I am excited to learn more and to help keep this town the best place to live in NH.

I would also like to congratulate the other winners. I look forward to working with you all.
