School Board Gets Briefed on Potential Bullying Forum

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During the Nov. 28 School Board meeting, Superintendent, Dan Black, announced that they were looking at potentially having forums in the near future about bullying.

“After debriefing the start of the School Year, Ad Council is recommending to the School Board we host two separate Parent/Community in person forums later in the school year to address how we handle bullying claims and investigations in our schools,” Black wrote in a memo to the school board.

He explained that they think that it would make sense to have a kindergarten to fifth grade, and grades 6 to 12.

Black said one of the purposes of the proposed forum would be to “explain to parents/community the process we follow when a bullying claim comes to any

Judge Rules Malaguti’s Sexual Complaint on Paul, Frivolous

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

In a scathing 20-page order, Superior Court Judge, Andrew Schulman, found Town Manager, Michael Malaguti, made a “frivolous sexual harassment complaint” against former Town Councilor, Deb Paul. In addition, the judge found Malaguti and the town of Londonderry improperly tried to shield the document from the public. Even after being ordered by the court to turn over the document, it took 30-days to comply.

The complaint was made during the final weeks of Deb Paul’s term as a Town Councilor, and according to Paul, the issue more or less highlighted what she felt she had to deal with throughout her term.

The complaint was filed with the council against Paul because of a comment she made on Feb. 6 and it took her eight months to get a copy of the complaint.

During the Feb. 6 Town Council meeting, Paul tried to explain why she felt having the Town Planner and Economic Developer take on a dual role was a conflict. She stated, “... that’s a conflict of interest with the Planner being in economic development. You have someone seducing businesses to come here and then looking at their plans. That’s not a conflict of interest?”

Malaguti took exception to this statement, filing a complaint to the Town Council following the meeting.

Hours before the next council meeting on March 6, a meeting that would be Paul’s final one, Town Council Chairman, John Farrell, asked Paul to get there early to discuss something. When asked what it was in regards to, he

Woodmont Apartment Resident Claims Serious Safety Issues

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During Public Comment at the Monday night, Dec. 4, Town Council meeting, Jessica Butcher, a resident at the Woodmont Commons Main Street apartments, attended the meeting to ask for assistance in solving a problem at the complex.

She told the council that residents in the Woodmont Commons Building are facing a “serious safety issue,” saying that there has been a bug infestation there since the Summer.

Butcher said the management company of the facility has been unresponsive and has been unable to get the issue rectified.

She explained that due to a neighbor letting her trash build up in the hallway, a vile odor has resulted, causing her to think, “someone had died” in the apartment.

As a result of this issue, she said her and her neighbors have been killing between 30 to 40 flies per day.

According to Butcher, the problem began in August and got worse as colder weather developed, but the management company has been “non-existent.”

She added the Londonderry code enforcement officer, Nick Codner, has been one of the only people to come down and take a look at the problem to document it.

She added that she works from home was also told the apartments had been “bug bombed,” but did not think that had taken place.

School Board Get Briefed On Town's Utilities Committee

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Utilities Committee Chair, Lynn Wiles, was in front of the School Board during its Nov. 29 meeting, with a presentation about what the committee has done since its first being formed, and about some potential projects the committee and school district could work together on.

Wiles said he has been talking informally with School Board Chair, Bob Slater, about what they do.

"I think there's some really good opportunities if we choose to go down that path with the school system as well," Wiles said.

Wiles explained that the Town Council approved the committee on Dec. 5, 2022, as a "standing committee" with the charter of studying and making recommendations to the Town Manager, Town Council, and other staff regarding different utilities including electricity and heat.

"We're a relatively new committee.... I'll be honest, we're still trying to find our way," Wiles said.

He stated that their first meeting was in March, and since August, they have had their full committee made up of seven full time members and three alternate members, along with state Rep. Ron Dunn, who is not only a state representative, but also the Town Council liaison.

Since then, they have formed four different sub-committees "to perform research and fact finding," in areas including energy, water, sewer, and solid waste, along with cable tv and internet.

At this point, Wiles said they aren't able to make any decisions directly on their own.

"We are strictly an advisory board at this point in time," Wiles said.

Wiles explained that some of the projects the committee is working on or are involved with, includes drinking water quality, regional water system policy and master planning, and the Auburn Road Landfill Solar Farm.

"It's an interesting use for a piece of that land that doesn't really have any other use at this time," Wiles said about the landfill project.

Wiles also noted that they are looking at different funding sources, noting they want to defray the cost for taxpayers.

It was explained by Wiles that there are a number of partnering opportunities that they could explore between the school district and the town, saying that their committee members have experience in areas like solar planning and implementation, community power aggregation, recycling, composting, and related policy development.

Wiles, who said he has been in town for many years, thinks that there are times when there is a divide between the town side of things and the school district side of things, saying that some different projects they can work on together, may be a positive thing.

"I think this is an opportunity to bridge that gap and I'm excited to be able to help," Wiles said.

Superintendent, Dan Black, said any of the areas the committee is working on, the district would be interested in looking at as well, and they would be positive things to take on.

Slater said they want to be able to look at how to reduce costs and save taxpayers money, along with putting more money directly into teaching students.

"It takes that burden off the taxpayer," he said.

staff member in our schools.

Another purpose would be to explain how the district goes about investigating "if a claim does warrant that approach."

Black said they would also be able to explain the "major laws that provide the foundation for how we handle and address bullying claims and investigations."

Black stated that another purpose would also be to explain to parents the resources they have in the schools for parents and students when they have questions or concerns about bullying.

"The scope of the forums could grow from there as we engage more of our staff on this project in terms of school counselors and assistant principals, who know the details of this work very well on the day to day," Black wrote in a memo.

He said they would be looking to have the forum in the late Winter or early Spring, "when we do not have concerts/performance and major sporting events so that we could potentially have strong parent/community turn out."

"The forums would start as informational sessions, and we would leave some room towards the end for Q & A with parents to review the finer details of this process," Black said.

School Board Chair, Bob Slater, said "I think a lot of parents don't understand what bullying is," and that they could provide different examples of what it looks like during the meeting.

In personnel news, the School Board accepted the retirements of Jim Hamilton, a teacher at Londonderry Middle School and Susan Spinney, a teacher at Londonderry High School.

The School Board also accepted a number of resignations during the meeting including Courtney Conomacos, a support staff member at Londonderry Middle School, Aallyah Gagnon, a support staff member at Matthew Thornton, and Layna Holk, a support staff member at South School.

Conservation Commission Provide Clarification Over Hazard Trees

PAUL CONYERS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Conservation Commission met on Nov. 14 to discuss a request from The Nevins to cut down hazard trees. Nevins resident and member of The Nevins Association, Steve Feinberg, was at the meeting to make a formal request. In the past, there had been questions over who has the authority to grant removal permission to remove trees or clear land.

"I had a tree that was very close to hitting my house, and I had an Association telling me it couldn't be cut because the tree was in a conservation zone," said Feinberg. "I guess the Commission did two things: they actually came to my house, and confirmed there was a hazardous tree hitting my house."

Seven years ago, Feinberg had the trees removed, and the Zoning Board later granted a variance allowing him to clear the surrounding land. However, more recently the Nevins community board gave mixed advice on the process needed to remove other problem trees. It was unclear how rules within the Nevins community interacted with the established variance and buffer zone.

"Do I need anything more?" asked Feinberg, who wanted to know if he would need to ask the Zoning Board or anyone else if a similar issue around land clearance came up again. "My goal would be to get this Commission to formally agree that these are acceptable rules for the Nevins to follow with respect to the buffer zone and variance area.

The Commission agreed to continue advising property owners on best practices under town law and Conservation Chair, Marge Badois, promised to email the Nevins a record of town rules. The Chair admitted the situation has been "confusing" for everyone.

Ranger, Glenn Aprile, reported that a man hunting deer with a crossbow in local orchards was detained after nighttime complaints of a disturbance.

"Our guys stopped him and Fish and Game gave five or six misdemeanor violations," said Aprile.

Ray Breslin of 3 Gary Drive took some time during the public comments to emphasize the importance of protecting water resources in town, a topic that has been high on many agendas following well contamination from Saint-Gobain Performance Plastics' Merrimack plant. He also encouraged higher attendance at Conservation meetings

"What's more important than natural resources, water being one of them?" said Breslin. "I think it's so important that we, as citizens, speak about these issues. I think we have to continue on and be heard."

Commission Alternate member, Mike Speltz, responded with a list of items from a recent water study on local groundwater. Speltz confirmed that "the Planning staff said they would make a good faith effort" to work through the list.

School Board Hires Attorney

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

After tabling the decision during the previous meeting, the Londonderry School Board, once again discussed potentially hiring an attorney for the School Board during the Nov. 28 meeting.

At the previous meeting School Board Chair Bob Slater discussed a proposal to hire Lauren Irwin, from Upton & Hatfield, LLP, for the school board to use at times when needed. The proposal came after over two months of researching different law firms, Slater, who first brought the idea of the School Board having their own attorney, is for issues like writing policies, in which case they'd be able to go to their attorney and bring back recommendations to the superintendent.

"It's basically for the board to consult on an additional opinion," Slater said previously.

Superintendent Dan Black during the previous meeting brought up concerns about the limited number of law firms in the state who handle education law, and felt that they should talk to their current district attorneys before making a decision. He noted that they use different attorneys currently depending on the issue.

"This could force one of our law firms to dump us in this process," Black said.

Slater explained that they had a consultant meeting last week with Irwin, and asked a lot of questions, and was also able to talk to the district's attorney.

"I think we're in a good place now," Slater said.

He said that it would be good to bring Irwin in when the School Board is looking to write policies and "it's just there for any other questions."

"We would look for this advice with the majority of the board, we're not out here to spend taxpayer dollars," Slater said, noting that it would also be good to get advice or ask questions when needed.

"We don't have that right now," Slater said.

The School Board voted to move forward with hiring Irwin as their School Board Attorney. Slater told the Board previously that they would be charged $285 an hour, which is $5 more than the current district lawyer rate.

It was noted that they wouldn't have to add any additional costs with having their own attorney, since they wouldn't be paying the district attorney and instead would be paying their own.

Slater previously told his colleagues that she "specializes in school board and school district law," and said that she represents 10 different school districts along with various boards and numerous municipalities.

Remembering a Day That Brought Us Together

Before Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor was just an American Naval Base on Hawaiian territory. That fateful morning would be forever etched into the minds of citizens all over the country. It was a day that brought Americans together.

Only a few hours after the Japanese attacked on Pearl Harbor, Japan formally declared war against the United States.

The sentiment Americans felt after the news of the attack spread is best summarized by the words of fleet Chaplain William A. Macguire, "Don't say we buried our dead with sorrow. They died manfully. They were buried manfully. And we will avenge their deaths, come what may".

Pearl Harbor infuriated Americans and motivated an undivided decision to enter into World War II. On Dec. 8, 1941, the US joined the Allied Powers. Before these events took place at Pearl Harbor, the country was divided and not all Americans were supportive of the efforts of World War II. After the attack, those who were skeptical began singing a different tune, and the support for the war became unanimous. The attack ensured America's entrance into the war, provoking a joint effort by all, at home and overseas.

The states truly became united that morning, and everyone had a part to play in the war efforts. Civilian employees helped to load and clean weapons, wounded men fought on, doctors from miles away rushed to tend to the wounded, and when blood donations were needed donors stood in line for almost seven hours to do their part.

The outcome of World War II may have been entirely different, had the US not joined the Allied Powers. The US implemented the draft where all men from age 18 to 45 were included, providing over 16 million troops to the front lines. All automobile factories in the US stopped production of cars and began manufacturing only vehicles and planes for the war. Women went to work in factories to make war supplies, and some even joined the armed forces. Without the US providing so many troops and supplies, the Allied Powers may not have won.

Although the attack on Dec. 7, 1941, may not be our proudest day, there are many positive outcomes and effects that are too often overlooked. We can look back on this day and be proud that we live in a country where people are able to forget themselves and do whatever it takes to help each other in a time of need, to unite toward a common goal. Without our combined efforts, we could be living in a different world today. Pearl Harbor changed the course of history, and it is on each and every Dec. 7, that we reflect and say a prayer for those lost, and those who continue to defend our country to this day.

Letters

Our Library

To the editor,

I wish to thank Paul Skudlarek for his letter. It does seem that a motivated group with extreme views are trying to influence what our Library shelves and how it is managed for the sole purpose of turning it into a political propaganda institution. NH, of which Londonderry is a part, has a mix of political views without a clear majority leaning one way or another. While I am not a frequent user of our Library, it does not seem to be political-ly skewed.

We do not need to start 'book banning' like some other States have. It was pointed out in a letter on Oct. 12, that the Library has already shelved five editions of the Tuttle Twins - books clearly aimed at political indoctrination for ages ten and under. With examples like that, one can hardly argue that right wing views are being suppressed. We also do not need to close off our Library from membership of the major library associations. Unfounded claims that they are Marxist organizations is more about McCarthyism than anything factual. We do not need to repeat that era.

On a different matter, while I do not think we need to revisit the elected Treasurer position, I would be supportive of some sort of restriction to ensure that, for anyone to be elected to that position, they must pass a background check and be suitably qualified. Unfortunately, I'm not sure how we could accomplish that, as it requires disqualifying many residents from the position, myself included as unqualified. Perhaps an elected position but with a Council/Manager "nuclear option" to fire and call a new election in cases of misconduct.

RE: Paul Skudlarek

To the editor,

I read the letter that Paul Skudlarek wrote last week the Londonderry times and I would like to thank Paul for pointing out that myself and others in Londonderry are against Marxist organizations (ALA, NHLTA) advising our Library Trustees or our Library employees. Our tax dollars pay for the dues to these organizations. I am happy to live in a Constitutional Republic and I want it to stay that way. There was something puzzling in his letter in that he claimed that I had donated "a Christian-based children's book series by child-actor turned evangelist Kirk Cameron" to the library. I have never read any of these books, purchased these books, nor donated these books. I have since spoken to people, parents, who are familiar with them and I have been told that they are about as "wholesome and non-political as it gets". So, again, I would like to thank Paul for the heads up. He may want to purchase some of these books himself and donate them. I think it's a great idea! Alternatively, perhaps the Library can purchase them. These books and others are available on Bravebooks.us.

I did donate some children's books to the Library on June 7, 2023 and to date 7 of the 11 books are mistakenly shelved in the young adult section. The books I donated are designed for 5 to 11 year olds and teach children about how economies, markets, governments and law work. They are based on the works of well respected economists such as Henry Hazlitt, F.A. Hayek, Leonard Read, Ludwig von Mises and more! Please reach out to me directly if you would like to know more about these books as they also write books for teens and have come out with some new editions since my donation.

The document was a complaint letter that Malaguti had drafted on Feb. 12.

She briefly read the letter, and asked for a copy, but was told it wasn't a public document, the town would be retaining it.

Feeling that this was not a document protected from being released to the public, she asked her lawyer, Kevin Coyle, to make an inquiry to have the document released. He too was denied.

Shortly after that, Coyle filed for a hearing with the state superior court to have the document released.

Three months later on June 1, Judge, Andrew Schulman, heard both sides of the case appearing in Superior Court. Malaguti attended the hearing, along with town attorney, Elizabeth Bailey, Farrell, and councilor, Chad Franz. The town argued that it was a letter pertaining to an employee and exempt from 91-A request and Paul argued that it was a public document, since it was released to the Town Council and imagined it had been shared with others.

After that hearing, nearly five months later on Thursday, Oct. 26, the judge ruled in Deb Paul's favor.

The "Final Order" from the judge was a 20-page document that stated, "The court not only disagrees with the town (and that is enough), but finds the town's position to be objectively unreasonable," and ordered the town to provide with the requested documents and pay Paul's attorneys' fees and costs in connection with this matter because "this lawsuit was necessary to enforce compliance with RSA Chapter 91-A, and the town should have known that its position was unlawful."

Schulman said, "Michael J. Malaguti, filed a frivolous complaint against plaintiff, Deb Paul, under the Town's Policy Against Harassment.

Schulman also noted, "Malaguti's complaint was grounded solely on his objection to statements Councilor Paul made at a public Town Council meeting on Feb. 6, 2023. Essentially, Councilor Paul opined that a recent staff reorganization created an inherent "conflict of interest" by combining the roles of Planning Director and Director of Economic Development. In Paul's view, the roles are in tension because the Economic Development director is charged with enticing businesses to move to or expand their presence in the town, while the Planning director must ensure that all proposed plans conform to the town's land use restrictions. This means that the Planning director must sometimes tell business owners "no."

Schulman also stated, "Malaguti made two claims in his harassment complaint. First, he insisted that Councilor Paul's reference to "seducing businesses" amounted to sexual harassment. Malaguti argued that the phrase was "abhorrent" because (a) the current Town Planner/Development director is female, (b) the term has "sexual overtones" and "refer[s] directly to sexual encounters," and (c) Councilor Paul had previously raised similar concerns regarding the combined role of Town Planner/Development Director with Malaguti, who is male, without using any form of the word "seduce."

Second, Malaguti claimed that the language quoted above "publicly disparage[ed] one of my subordinates by suggesting she lacks integrity."

Malaguti's letter stated, "Councilor Paul's use of words carrying sexual overtones, or more accurately, referring directly to sexual encounters, is abhorrent, and I doubt Councilor Paul would have used these words to refer to a male or an older female."

He also took issue with Councilor Paul publicly disparaging one of his subordinates by suggesting she lacks integrity.

Malaguti's complaint finished with, "I am a white male. But count me among those who have no interest in working for an employer that would tolerate such conduct."

In the Order, the Judge commented, "The substance of Malaguti's complaint is a matter of public record. Councilor Paul's comments were made in the public session of a public hearing."

He added, "The town's residents have a right to know how the person they hired to manage the town's administration does his job. The town has bestowed considerable authority in Malaguti. It has a legitimate interest in monitoring how he uses or abuses that authority. Likewise, the town has a keen interest in how its elected officials behave.

By contrast, the town has only a minimal interest in nondisclosure.

Public disclosure of a sexual harassment complaint may chill future complaints. An employee with a good faith claim of sexual harassment may be dissuaded from making a report if they believed it would become a public document.

In this case the highest-ranking administrative officer of a town made a frivolous complaint against an elected official to punish the elected official's constitutionally protected speech. The disclosure of this complaint should have no chilling effect on future good faith complaints."

The judge used the word "frivolous" five times in the 20-page document describing the Town Managers action.

Coyle was shocked with what transpired after the Right-to-Know request, "What should have taken the town two minutes and maybe 15 cents to comply with a simple RSA 91-a request has cost the town over $15,000. The town's hostility to the public's right to know is astounding."

He said, "The request Deb made was for what was very clearly a public document. That the town fought so hard to shield Malaguti from embarrassment is astounding."

Coyle also added, "Having done RSA 91-a work for over 25-years, I tried very hard to get them to turn over the document without going to court. We gave them a lot of chances to just simply comply with the law. The town wasted valuable public resources. The Town Council should look at the judge's order and reevaluate how they respond to these requests. Just follow the law."

Paul found the judge's decision validating, "This was the kind of thing I dealt with on a fairly regular basis as a member of the Town Council. I needed to guard my every word, fearing that someone would claim some sort of conflict."

Paul added, "This ordeal has been a waste of taxpayer resources, if the manager felt so strongly about his opinion, why wouldn't he have just released the document. It took two attorneys, countless hours, and a judge to find that what was done was wrong. The judge's conclusion solidified that the whole matter was frivolous."

She said, "There's been a lot of talk at recent council meetings about how much work and money it takes to deal with 91-A requests and this is a prime example of why they are being made. Taxpayers shouldn't have to take it to this extreme to get public documents."

Malaguti declined to comment on the judges ruling.

The Complaint Letter and judges Final Order can be found with the on-line edition being posted on Friday.

Fire Department Look For Savings On New Fire Trucks

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Town Council was presented with a proposal by the Fire Department during its Nov. 20 meeting to lock in the price for two new fire trucks.

It was explained by Fire Chief, Bo Butler, that they were looking to use “already appropriated funds in a creative way to fulfill our need to replace our engines,” which the plan was endorsed by Finance Director, Justin Campo.

Deputy Fire Chief, Philip LeBlanc, said their fleets have about a 10 year life span, and they have two engines they are looking to replace that were built in 2013 and 2014.

He said after that they have “a lot higher repair costs.”

LeBlanc said the other issue is with the fire truck manufacturing world, saying “it takes three years to build a fire truck.”

Before, he said they used to take 9 to 12 months to build, which means they can no longer sign for them, and then get them a year later, which is one of the main reasons they are looking to get them ordered now.

Another main reason is because of the cost increases, saying if they sign for the two trucks now, they lock in the price. LeBlanc added that every quarter there would be a price increase.

He stated that the plan would be to have them begin building one of the trucks now and then another one in six months, and by having the delay, it would mean payments would begin in two different fiscal years.

LeBlanc said they would also receive a discount on the trucks by locking in a price now.

“We can save about $100,000 by signing for them now,” he said.

Town Councilor, Ted Combes, asked when they have to start making payments. Finance Director, Justin Campo, said while they could get a small pre-paid discount, if they began paying on it right away, it wouldn’t be worth it compared to the interest they would pay before getting the trucks. He added that he recommended beginning the payments once they take ownership of it.

“All we’re doing is locking a price in,” LeBlanc said.

It was noted by Campo that they would begin the payments for the first engine in FY 26, and the second engine’s payment would be in FY 27.

Campo said in FY 26 and 27, larger lease payments fall off, and he is hopeful they will be able to utilize it and only have to pay a minimum amount extra than they are paying for the line item and not have any increases to the budget at all.

The Town Council approved moving forward to lock in the price of the trucks.

A new management company has taken over, but she stated they are also unresponsive.

Butcher has been living in the apartment for four years, paid thousands of dollars in rent, and hasn’t had a problem until recently.

After her statements, Town Council Chair, John Farrell, directed the Fire Chief, Bo Bulter, to go to the apartments with the Heath Officer and a police officer, if needed, to see what’s going on there.

Town Manager, Mike Malaguti, offered to contact the new owner of the building also.

Contacted on the following day, Butcher said that the Fire Chief, two firefighters, Codner, and a representative of the newest management company investigated the hallway and apartment where the smells were coming from and assured Butcher that the situation would be rectified.

The original management company was the nationally-based firm, Cushman & Wakefield, but the current firm is based out of Lowell, MA and she’s optimistic this issue will be resolved.

She also mentioned that there is an eviction proceeding underway currently.

OBITUARY

Robert David Lievens

Robert David Lievens died suddenly at home on Nov. 19, 2023. Bob was born Sept. 19, 1946, to William and Catherine (Mills) Lievens.

He leaves his wife and best friend, Deborah Wolfe Lievens; a daughter, Sarah Lievens and husband Trey Cromwell; a son, David Lievens and wife Eliza Spaulding, and their sons, William and Thomas; two sisters, Catherine Gallagher and Susan Folsom; and stepmother, Merrell Lievens.

He was predeceased by two brothers, William Lievens II and Stephen Lievens.

Bob was a lifelong resident of Londonderry. He graduated from St. Paul’s School, where he was named a Ferguson Scholar, and received a BA from Dartmouth College. He returned home to manage the family wholesale apple business, Woodmont Orchards, with his father and brother, Steve. He valued his employees greatly, finding many creative ways to offer them support. Bob was active in numerous apple organizations serving as an officer for both the New York-New England Apple Institute and the International Apple Institute. His favorite was the Northeast Apple Society, where the growers skied all day, and held “meetings” on chairlifts. He was an early member of the Londonderry Conservation Commission and spent several terms on the Planning Board. Later, Bob became a member of the Londonderry Housing and Redevelopment Authority.

Bob grew up skiing and made sure his wife and children got onto skis. He was a member of the Waterville Valley Black and Blue Trails Smashers and contributed above and beyond to the running of youth and disabled ski races. Bob enthusiastically followed every sport and extracurricular activity with which his children were involved, and he was especially proud to see Sarah row crew for Dartmouth.

In his retirement, he took great pleasure in mentoring younger apple farmers and advising aspiring businesspeople for SCORE (Service Core of Retired Executives). Retirement also brought time to travel, to ski with the Silver Streaks at Waterville Valley, and to enjoy his much-loved grandsons.

Bob’s personality, sense of humor, and presence were singular and unforgettable. He touched many lives and will be sorely missed.

Bob’s family invites his friends to join in a celebration of his life at a later date.

In lieu of flowers, memorial gifts may be made to the William Lievens Family Fund at St. Paul’s School, 325 Pleasant St., Concord, NH 03301.

Annual Santa Visit to Town Common Hampered by Rain

The Londonderry Rotary Club and the Town of Londonderry combined efforts once again for the annual Christmas on the Common. Attendance was down this year, due to the rain, on Sunday, Dec. 3, but spirits were high for the families awaiting the arrival of Santa and Mrs. Claus. The jolly couple were rushed in from their parade around town in a fire truck that afternoon.

New Balance Expands Commitment to U.S. Manufacturing to N.H.

Boston-based athletic manufacturer, New Balance, had an official ground-breaking ceremony recently at the future site of New Balance Londonderry, as the company adds New Hampshire to its New England locations for its sixth U.S. athletic footwear manufacturing facility.

“The Granite State is known for its strong economy and skilled workforce, and we look forward to New Balance Londonderry being an integral part of our growing domestic factory base,” says Joe Preston, New Balance President & CEO. “This new factory will help us meet our significant U.S. and global consumer demand and drive future business opportunities that showcase our long-standing pride in American craftsmanship and innovation.”

New Balance’s $70 million investment in the factory will add more than 150 jobs at the 102,000-square-foot single-story building that is planned to begin production in 2025. The addition of NB Londonderry reflects the company’s pride in American craftsmanship, its significant investments in innovation and machinery, and its integration of lean manufacturing processes to enable a demand driven and responsive MADE US supply network.

“With business and innovation flourishing in New Hampshire, we are excited to break ground in Londonderry for our sixth U.S. athletic footwear factory,” says Dave Wheeler, New Balance Chief Operating Officer. “Our relentless focus on manufacturing innovation and growing our U.S. footwear manufacturing footprint are two of the most important strategic initiatives we’ve sustained at New Balance and reflects the core of our culture.”

“We are thrilled to welcome New Balance to New Hampshire,” said Governor Chris Sununu. “We work hard to create a healthy environment for businesses, and Granite Staters feel the results: millions of dollars in investment, hundreds of jobs, and a sense of pride buying products made right here in New Hampshire. The Granite State is open for business!”

Shaheen said, “This new facility will create good jobs in the community, boost the local economy and strengthen New Hampshire’s reputation as a first-rate business destination.”

“New Balance’s new manufacturing facilities represent an exciting opportunity for Londonderry and our entire state,” said U.S. Senator Maggie Hassan.

“I’m thrilled to welcome New Balance to Londonderry with the start of construction on its first-ever athletic shoe manufacturing facility in the Granite State,” said Congressman Chris Pappas. “New Balance has a long and proud history of making products in America and here in New England, and today’s groundbreaking marks the start of the next chapter in that legacy.”

“This project will bring hundreds of jobs, and millions of dollars in new tax revenue, to Londonderry. Adjacent to the Manchester Boston Regional Airport, Londonderry’s Pet-tengill Road area is one of the state’s economic engines. The commercial and industrial activity here is crucial to a healthy tax base and is a boon to every Londonderry taxpayer,” says Londonderry Town Manager Mike Malaguti. “Instead of offshoring all its manufacturing as so many companies have done, New Balance has leaned into American manufacturing. Londonderry proudly welcomes New Balance to the community.”

The NB Londonderry expansion design, engineering and construction is being managed by Consigli Construction.

New Balance currently employs more than 1,500 manufacturing associates across its three Maine factories in Norridgewock, Norway, and Skowhegan and its two Massachusetts factories in Lawrence and Methuen. The company’s U.S. workers prepare, cut, and mold athletic shoe materials and components and then sew, press, and assemble them into the final product.

New Balance is also proactively working to innovate and expand its domestic supplier network for its MADE US footwear as well as drive new automation and robotics opportunities to enhance associate safety and ergonomics and increase productivity.

New Balance MADE footwear that is produced in the U.S. contains a domestic value of 70% or more and makes up a limited portion of New Balance’s U.S. sales. New Balance is the only major athletic shoe manufacturer that has maintained factories in the United States.
