New Study Committee Discuss Public Comment, Name Change

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Two of the items discussed during the first Lions Hall Study Committee meeting was in regards to whether or not there would be public comment allowed during its meetings and whether the name of the committee should be changed to better reflect the buildings history.

The topic of public comment during board and commission meetings, along with at the Town Council has been a point of discussion for weeks in town, following the passing of an advisory warrant article this past March, which asked voters whether or not they supported public input being required for all public meetings both at the beginning of meetings and at the end.

While it was only an advisory warrant article, meaning it had no legal effect, voters supported continued on page 6

Staff and Board at Odds on Decision to Continue Plans

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry Planning Board voted to continue two separate agenda items during its most recent meeting on Wednesday night, July 10, and at least one town staff member making it known that she didn't agree with the decision.

Planning Board Chair, Jake Butler, made the announcement before hearing each of the cases.

"I do apologize folks, on the behalf of the town of Londonderry and the Planning Board, but we do feel like we need a little bit more time, I'm sure that we will be able to hear you on the Aug.

7," Butler said following the first continuance.

The agenda items being continued were Public Hearings on an application for a rezoning request at 42 Ash Street from AR-1 (Agricultural Residential) to IND-1 (Industrial I) in the Woodmont Commons PUD and lot line adjustment at 41 Stonehenge Road.

Assistant Town Manager and Director of Economic Development, Kellie Caron, who was attending the meeting through videoconference, expressed her concerns with the decision.

"From staff's perspective, I'm in complete disagreement with this continuance," she said.

Butler said the Board wasn't happy with the amount of time it had to review materials for the two site plans.

"From the Planning Board's perspective, we're in disagreement with what the amount of time we've been given to review these applications, so that's absolutely fine," he said.

Later in the meeting, Caron said she is very concerned "about the Board taking action to continue the new site plans that were scheduled this evening. I found the reasoning to be unjustified and quite frankly, I'm concerned about it causing a potential legal issue for the continued on page 7

Gilcrest Road Speed Limit Gets Reduced to 30 mph

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The lower section of Gilcrest Road was under discussion during the Monday night, July 15, Town Council meeting, and after a lengthy dialog on whether or not to install stop signs on the road, it was determined that the best solution would be to lower the speed limit.

Area residents along the lower section of Gilcrest Road have attended numerous Traffic Safety Committee meetings as well as Planning Board meetings raising concerns with the amount of traffic on that road, as well as the speed cars are traveling through that area.

There have also been a number of recent accidents on that road, as well as plans presented for additional apartment complexes.

Planning Board members, Jake Butler and Tony DeFrancesco, attended the meeting to put forth the idea of installing a four-way stop sign on Gilcrest, at the intersection of Tokanel Drive and Charlestown Avenue.

DeFrancesco started by saying that the Planning Board has had dozens of residents voicing their concerns about traffic issues in that area during recent public hearing on projects being proposed on Gilcrest.

He said residents continued on page 7

Department of Labor Recovers $912K From Pipe Dream Brewing

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The U.S. Department of Labor recently announced the recovery of over $912K in back wages, withheld tips, liquidated damages for 44 employees of Londonderry taproom Pipe Dream Brewing. The company was also fined just over $5,000 for tip-related violations.

According to a press release, a federal investigation has recovered $912,594 for 44 employees of a Londonderry brewery and restaurant that illegally kept workers' credit card tips and incorrectly exempted several salaried employees, such as brewers, bartenders, cooks, and administrative staff from overtime pay requirements.

The recovery of $456,297 in back wages and withheld tips as well as an equal amount in liquidated damages comes after an investigation by the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division determined that Pipe Dream Brewing LLC violated the Fair Labor Standards Act when it retained tips paid on credit card transactions and denied overtime wages to incorrectly exempted employees for hours worked over 40 in a workweek. The department also assessed $5,148 in civil money penalties for the tip-related violations.

"The U.S. Department of Labor found Pipe Dream Brewing violated federal law that forbids managers, supervisors and employers from participating in tip pools or pocketing any portion of employees' tips for any purpose," explained Wage and Hour Division District Director, Steven McKinney, in Manchester, New Hampshire. "As the case's outcome shows, denying employees their full legal wages and keeping employees' tips can have costly consequences for employers."

The Wage and Hour Division is currently distributing the monies recovered to the affected workers. Workers who believe they are owed back wages from this investigation are encouraged to use the Wage and Hour Division's Workers Owed Wages online search tool to claim their back wages.

Learn more about the Wage and Hour Division, including tipped employees' rights and overtime guidance under the FLSA. Workers and employers can also call the division's toll-free helpline at 866-4US-WAGE (487-9243) confidentially with questions, regardless of immigration status.

Injuries Occur During Sunday Night Gilcrest Road Crash

A Toyota sedan with four occupants, caused power outages and injuries in a accident along Gilcrest Road on Sunday evening.

According to an incident report prepared by Londonderry Battalion

Commander, Bruce Hallowell, at 9:36 p.m. on Sunday night, July 14, Londonderry Fire Department Dispatch received multiple Emergency-911 calls reporting a motor vehicle collision in the area of 40 Gilcrest Road.

Upon arrival, Engine 2 found a single-vehicle collision with heavy damage and telephone pole/wire involvement.

On-scene crews encountered four people in the vehicle, with one of those persons entrapped in the vehicle. The entrapped victim required the use of extrication equipment from Rescue 1.

Those needing emergency care were transported by Derry, Windham, and Londonderry ambulances to local trauma centers.

Eversource crews arrived on the scene to render the electrical hazards safe and repair the downed telephone pole/electrical wires.

The road remained closed while Eversource completed the repairs, during which, power outages were isolated to a small number of customers in the southeast end of Londonderry.

Apparatus on Scene included: Battalion 2, Engine 2, Rescue 1, Medic 3, Derry Medic 1, Derry Medic 4, and Windham Medic 1.

LPD Captain Selected as Alternate Member For SNHPC

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry Planning Board during its July 10 meeting heard from two different candidates for the one open alternate position on the Southern NH Planning Commission for Londonderry.

One of the two candidates who applied for the role was resident, Ray Breslin, who serves in a number of different volunteer capacities in Londonderry, including on the Utilities Committee and Lions Hall Study Committee.

"I don't have any degrees," he said, but noted that his background was working in emergency generators, saying he traveled around the country and parts of the world for his career.

"I've had a lot of experience in the real world," Breslin said.

Recognizing his lack of a formal degree, Breslin said he understood if the Planning Board felt others were more qualified for the position.

"If you feel there are others that are more qualified that's fine too," Breslin said, noting that he's willing to dedicate his time to helping out with the Planning Commission.

The other candidate for the open position was Londonderry Police Capt., Patrick Cheetham, who said he's lived his entire life in Southern NH.

"I've served our community for the past 21 years, 11 months, and five days as a police officer with your police department, our police department," he told the Planning Board.

Cheetham explained that he is currently the captain for the Londonderry Police Department Airport Division and before that he was the captain for the Police Department's Service Division.

Among other responsibilities, he said "I had the responsibility of representing the department for site plan reviews for all major projects and minor projects and things that come before your board, members of town leadership both elected and non-elected."

During that time is when he said he became interested in regulations and things to that nature, saying it's where "my passion got started for trying to be more involved in not only our community but the planning and the future of our community."

Cheetham also noted during the meeting that the community "has been in tremendous growth over the last 20 years let alone the last two and having a front row seat to many of these projects as a police captain as a police lieutenant... I've always been very very impressed by the level of organization, planning, and vetting that goes into everyone of these projects."

While he's always lived in the area, Cheetham said he recently moved to Londonderry and thinks he would be able to give back to the community effectively in his role on the Planning Commission.

In addition, Cheetham said he has two masters degrees and has taught online for Southern NH for the past few years.

The Planning Board unanimously recommended to the Town Council that Cheetham be selected as the alternate member, which the Town Council approved during its July 15 meeting. Planning Board member, Lynn Wiles, abstained.

While Breslin wasn't selected, Planning Board members were appreciative of his commitment to helping the town.

"Ray you're very involved in the town as it is," Planning Board Chair, Jake Butler, said. "Thank you very much Ray, for everything you do for the town,"

This Political Season Think Before You Speak

In past years, comments of some candidates have been so outrageous, that they polarize people, get them all riled up, and it's all we can do not to blurt out something as equally inappropriate.

The same holds true as we read and watch most news stories about the latest acts of violence against political parties. It's too easy to react with generalizations, rumors, and accusations that, in calmer times, we would never consider uttering.

Looking at the anger and outrage of an us VS them mentality makes it even more important to recognize the power that free speech carries. Free speech is a serious responsibility. We need to understand the potential result of demonizing religions, nationalities, or political parties.

It's not just the Presidential election that brings out the worst in people, it happens with all kinds of tragedies. People looking to divide us more instead of making it better in a calm manner has people taking matters to a violent level using fear. We all need to learn how to listen to each other; maybe we think differently or we do not have the same perspective, but no matter what, we must learn to agree to disagree and civilly find common ground.

Calling for violence against each other is just wrong. Whether it's in the heat of a political race or reaction to a horrendous act it does no one any good and is very hard to justify. The idea of thinking about what we say before we say it needs a huge boost right about now.

In this age of social media and the Internet, people write, send, and post without even a second reading or a thought as to what consequence the words they just posted may have. We're used to immediate gratification when we get all wound up about a cause, politician, or injustice and love an almost immediate reaction. But we're dealing with real lives. If people hear something enough times about someone or something with no truth to it, just allegations, violence is a possible response, one no one wants.

Think before you speak!

It is very human to care, and be passionate about a particular topic or subject. Channel that passion and your messaging in a way that gets people to listen to you, promotes dialogue and discussion, and creates an atmosphere where free speech is welcomed and celebrated. Find common ground, recognize, and appreciate people's differences. We are all just people. Dividing us more than we already are serves no purpose, and the more we draw attention to these differences, the less we see how we are all the same.

Letters

Kevin Smith

To the editor,
It's funny (not so funny) how Kevin Smith's name keeps popping up. He's the one, if you recall, as the outgoing town manager, who instigated a town-wide property reappraisal when we'd already had one two-years prior.

Of course, it was only done because the market was booming. What a haul. Taxes went up ten to twenty percent.

In almost the same breath he urged the Town Council to adopt a fifty percent tax break to new businesses.

Goes off.

Runs for Senate.

Now he's back facilitating land grabs and development for guess what...new businesses.

Kind of makes you wonder in whose interest he was working as town manager.

It's quite a playground ain't it?

Beware Condo Options

To the editor,
A letter from Jim Green of Londonderry to Seniors wanting to "remain in their Home and retain as much control of their lives as possible", should be required reading and explored to the fullest. Mr Green address changes one may make to your present Home. Changes that add income and add value to your Home. All this while retaining control. Down sizing is another consideration. Smaller Home. Lower taxes, insurance, upkeep and workload. All this while maintaining control. Should you consider a Condo Association, proceed with great caution. If this sounds like a warning, it is. I have lived in one for the past 15 years and speak from experience. The sales pitch is everything a downsizing Senior would want. You are only responsible for your interior and payment of a monthly tax. All things exterior to the walls of your Condo and within the confines of the Association properly become Association responsibilities controlled by the governing Board. Any control of these issues are no longer yours. You forfeit that control when you signed on. If you expect, and you should, that the Board consists of people experienced in property management with financial skills you will be greatly disappointed. The Board is made up of residents who had more friends than others to vote for them and won a popularity contest. State rules governing the creation of Condo Associations recognize Board members can be less than qualified. They add that the Association therefore contracts with a management company for assistance. Does the representative that arrives have an M.B.A. degree or financial skills? Not usually A high school graduate with some on the job training. An example of a Home owner versus Condo owner (I experienced this). Homeowner discovers part of his driveway is broken resulting in a sinkhole that retains dirt and water. This is carried into the garage causing a filthy floor. Remedy. Contact a Paving company, Sinkhole eliminated. This is carried out because of knowledge and control of the Homeowner. Same problem for Condo owners. Having no control and it being exterior it is the Associations responsibility. Contact the President for service. Response. Yes he agrees the sinkhole exists and filth is brought in. Solution. The holes will be patched as a do it yourself project by himself and project will be placed on file for future attention. It is presently 2 years and counting. The problem requires Surgery. The President's solution. A band aid. This is only one of many dissatisfactions Again I say to Seniors who would contemplate relocating to a Condo Association. If you treasure your independence and want control of your life. Proceed with caution.

Zoning Board Approve Variance For Gas Station Sign

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During the most recent Zoning Board of Adjustment meeting one of the agenda items was in regards to a variance request for a changeable electronic message board sign for the property located at 162 Rockingham Road in the Mixed-Use Commercial zoning district.

The business, which is a 7-Eleven, was represented at the meeting by the applicant, Carolyn Parker.

She explained that they were in front of the ZBA because they were looking to go from having manual prices to LED Prices for the gas prices, and that the changeable electronic message boards aren't allowed as part of their regulations.

"This price sign will change one to two times a day," Parker told the ZBA.

Parker explained that they don't view it as an electronic reader board, saying they view that as something that changes more often than what they would have.

She also explained that it would allow them to change the prices from inside the store, and potentially even be able to change it from the corporate office at times.

It was also noted during the meeting by Parker, that they would be changing the prices electronically as much as they would normally change manually, saying that the only difference is that it wld not longer be manually done.

With inclement weather for example, Parker said it could be dangerous due to having to change the prices manually, and that it would also help with it being LED to be able to see the prices at night.

"Electronic signs can be changed remotely from a computer," she said.

She also said that the LED signs "will look new for many years to come," compared to the old manual signs, Parker said.

It was noted by Assistant Town Manager, Kellie Caron, that a different gas station a little bit ways down the road had a similar request approved recently.

No one spoke for or against the variance request during the meeting.

The variance request was unanimously approved during the meeting.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment also approved a continuance for a case regarding a request for a variance to allow an encroachment of 30 feet into the 40 foot right-of-way setback for the property located at 37 Mill Road.

The case was continued until the next ZBA meeting on July 17, at 7 p.m.

Lions Hall Study Committee Members Select Officers

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry Lions Hall Study Committee held its first meeting on July 2, after being established by the Town Council last month.

During the meeting, the first objective was to vote on the different officer positions for the Committee.

One of those positions was the Chair position, which Administrative Support Coordinator, Kirsten Hildonen, said acts as "kind of the central hub for the committee."

Committee member, Lary Casey, said he thought his colleague on the committee, Derek D'Anna, would be a good fit.

"I'm interested in your background Derek," Casey said.

He explained that based on the complexity of the project, and with the timeline they are dealing with he said he thought he had a good background for the role, after hearing him present to the Town Council during the interviews.

"You're in a business leadership role, you've got operations director experience, you've done a lot of project management, you've been involved in construction projects," Casey said.

Casey also pointed out that he has "deep roots" in the community and has expressed his interest in the project.

"My feeling is that you have more at stake, you and your family and your generation have more at stake in terms of the long term future of this town asset than the rest of us," Casey said.

D'Anna said he has lived in Londonderry his entire life and has three kids, with two going into high school.

David Ellis, another member of the Committee, said he was looking for a certain skill set when it comes to who he thinks should be the Chair.

"We need to look for someone who is able to keep us on track, focused on whatever schedule the meeting is, so we want someone who's good at organizing a meeting," he said.

In addition to D'Anna, Wagner was also nominated for the position.

D'Anna didn't receive a second for his nomination so no vote was taken.

Wagner said she would be chair if they voted D'Anna as Vice Chair, saying he's young and that "we want him to stay involved."

The Committee

voted Wagner to serve as the Chair of the Committee, with D'Anna selected as the Vice Chair for the Committee.

In addition, the Committee selected John Blay as the Secretary for the Committee.

The next committee meeting is set to take place on July 18.

the warrant article on a 3,085 to 1,077 vote.

"I don't want to create any headlines that might distract from the board's work or the organizational meeting or the good work that's been done here tonight and I don't see anybody here from the public," Town Manager, Mike Malaguti, said before the issue was raised by Chair, Kathy Wagner.

"We are going to have public comments," Wagner said.

Wagner raised the topic with other members of the Committee asking them what they thought the process should be for public comment including potentially having it allowed throughout the meeting.

"I don't think it's a bad idea personally, I don't think it's a bad idea to have public comment beforehand and afterwards after people have heard a discussion," she said.

Wagner said she thought it made sense to allow for public comment to take place throughout the meeting saying that some people in attendance may hear things during the meeting and then want to discuss it or express their opinions about a particular topic.

"I have no problem with continuance," Wagner said, reiterating that she wants the public to be involved with the process.

The Committee members also agreed with having public comment throughout.

Another topic raised during the meeting was in regards to what the name of the Committee would be moving forward.

Wagner said she thinks it made sense to call it the Reverend Morrison Meetinghouse Study Committee, in recognition of the original name of the building. The building has gone by the name Lions Hall for years, since the Lions Club has been using the building.

One of the reasons she gave for why she feels it's important to change the name is so people, who may consider donating to any efforts to restore it, may not want to donate if they don't know who the funds would be going to.

It was explained by Administrative Support Coordinator, Kirsten Hildonen, that since it was a significant change to the charge for the Study Committee, they needed to recommend to the Town Council to have them formally change the name, which the Committee did.

During the July 15 Town Council meeting, the Town Council approved changing the name. The council also amended the charge to the committees ultimate goal. The amended charge was to find the most economical and efficient way to put the Reverend Morrison Meetinghouse building back into service and determine its core usage for the immediate future."

The committee is expected to give their recommendations to the Town Council by Oct. 1 of this year in order to determine what impact it would have in the budget.

Continued from page 1 have expressed that most of the issues come from cut-through traffic and the town cannot stop that, they can only try to control it.

DeFrancesco said, "The situation is bad. Those folks cannot get out of those two roads to take a left, to go north."

He said the ultimate goal of the stop sign, no matter where it is placed, is to slow traffic down.

Director of Public Works, Dave Wholley, was asked how difficult it would be to install the stop signs at the intersection, to which he said it would not, they would just need time to notify the public.

Police Chief, Kim Bernard, was also asked to speak on the matter. He reiterated that people use the road as a cut-through; he felt that something is better than nothing, but he feared there would be accidents there during winter. He didn't feel that enforcement would be an issue.

John Trottier, Londonderry's Director of Engineering and Environmental Services, stated that he thought it was a bad idea to put a stop sign there, saying the road has a six percent grade and during the winter, the town will be replacing the guard rail fairly frequently.

Trottier felt that using a stop sign to deter people from using the road, they'll just speed up to make up for lost time.

Town Council Chair, Chad Franz, suggested putting the stop sign up and if it doesn't work out, the town could just remove it.

Member, Shawn Farber, put forth the idea of doing a deeper look into on the overall traffic problems in town. He wanted to help solve the problem in the area, but wanted to do it in a more systematic way.

Town Manager, Mike Malaguti, agreed that an overall study into traffic issues is needed, but that would take funding. He added that he felt a revolving fund might need to be established, saying that traffic studies are expensive.

Wholley clarified his position on the subject of putting the stop sign in, saying he wanted to be clear about his answer to the council earlier. He added that although it wouldn't be difficult to install the signs, "Do I agree with this being a four-way stop? No, I do not." Adding, a much more in-depth study should be done on the intersection.

Wholley also felt that installing the signs just to see if it works would set the town up for legal issues in the future. He said, "You can't use the motoring public as a guinea pig, you better have a better answer to a lawyer if a serious accident happens there."

He felt the council should be more cautious about what direction they take on the intersection.

In the end, the Town Council decided that the best way to slow drivers down would be to lower the speed limit to 30 miles per hour on Gilcrest Road.

Malguti added that an inventory of the speed limits of all roads in town should be updated to reflect speed limit changes made over the past several years.

Planning

She added that the agenda for the meeting was sent to the Planning Board three weeks ago, giving them ample time to bring up any issues.

"You were aware of the applications that were scheduled. You could have contacted staff or come into the Town Hall at any time to view them," Caron told the Board.

She also noted that the full application and associated plans were sent to the Board by email two weeks ago, and they had the chance to review the materials "and make an informed decision."

Caron said the staff recommendations were sent yesterday afternoon, but reminded the Board that within the last six months, the Board wouldn't have received comments until 7 p.m. the day of the meeting, and that the town isn't required to provide recommendations to the board, adding she didn't think it was a valid reason to continue an agenda item.

She also said the continuance impacts the applicants, who pay engineers and other representatives to attend these meetings.

"I'm disappointed quite frankly in the decision, I was under the impression that we staff and the Board were working together towards a solution about our review process and our regulations, so it's unclear to me why this decision would be made this evening, and why that justification would be used," Caron said.

She finished by saying, "You do have a responsibility, as a Board, to make your own decisions and you need to consider your responsibility to these applicants and property owners in doing so."

Butler, who said he didn't want to entertain a back and forth on the matter, said, "The Board has made a decision and that's the decision we've made, that was, at the time, what we felt was in the best interest of the residents of Londonderry. I leave it at that."

Caron also let the Planning Board know that she will be going on leave in the near future. She said she will be working through the end of July, but this meeting would be the last meeting until "a later time."

Three Wins Put Londonderry Post 27 Juniors at 8-4

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry Greeley-Parmenter-Harrington Post 27 Junior Legion Baseball team tacked on three more wins last week to head into the final regular season week at 8-4.

The three victories were all taken on the team's home diamond and they came against squads from Newmarket, Portsmouth, and Derry.

Londonderry's biggest win of the week came on Monday, July 8, taking on the Robert G. Durgin Post 67 of Newmarket. The Post 27 squad managed to tally 10-runs in the first three innings and didn't give up a single run for the 10-0 shutout.

Sully Daron and Kayden Pouliot combined efforts from the hill with Daron getting the win as the starter.

Daron threw three innings with five strikeouts, two walks, and three hits.

Pouliot hurled the remaining two frames, striking out two and giving up just one hit.

As for the offense, nine Londonderry batters had hits in the game with Jace Ruggiero and Daron getting two RBIs each to lead the team.

Post 27 batter put up seven runs in the second inning, all of which came with two outs.

The frame started with Graham Killelea taking a base after being hit. Liam Parent had the first hit of the inning, on a ground ball to right. Following that, five single, a walk and an error gave Londonderry a comfortable 8-0.

In the third, a single to center by Ruggiero with two men on brought in the final two runs of the game and the mercy rule was implemented to end the game in the fifth.

On Thursday, July 11, the Post 27 squad mustered up some late in the game heroics to salvage

Liam Killelea at centerfield

Bredan Fitzgerald at second a 5-3 win over Portsmouth's Post 6.

Londonderry trailed 2-0 heading into the sixth inning, when the offense came to life to score five runs.

In that inning the home team bats had three singles, a double, two walks, and two batters hit.

Pouliot got the double with a fly ball to left field, scoring two.

Two singles and a walk led to the Post 6 run in the top of the seventh, but Londonderry was able to hold onto the two-run lead.

Daron and Pouliot once again combined efforts on the mound with Daron getting the win as the starter.

Daron had nine strikeouts, three walks, and seven hits in six and a third innings.

Londonderry bats only needed seven hits to get the win.

In Post 27's final game of the week, on Friday night, July 12, Londonderry took a 7-0 lead early to beat Derry's Post 9 by a 7-4 margin.

Ruggiero was the winning pitcher, throwing six innings, striking out eight, walking three, and giving up six hits.

Parent came in as the reliever for one inning, striking out one on the final out of the game.

Post 27 scored their runs on three singles, an error and a sacrifice fly. Derry's pitching kept the Post 27 bat quite, allowing just four hits.

Lancer Tennis Team Recognized with State Honors

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry High School 2024 Boys' Tennis team were recently awarded three individual All-State Awards for their productive spring season.

This is the first year that the New Hampshire Tennis Coaches Council was formed and helped drive All-State Awards nominations and selections.

The Lancers selected for state honors are Neel Chakravarthy and Aidan Board, who were both given Division I, First Team All-State honors.

The Division I Coach of the Year award went to Alex Burbine and Tyler Palmieri.

This was Burbine's second year as head coach, last year he

Neel Chakravarthy

Aidan Board

shared duties with long-time coach and teacher, Roberta Davis. The Londonderry team has been in a rebuilding mode since 2020 and went from 1-13 in 2022 and 2-12 in 2023 to 11-5 in 2024. This year's squad was able to make it further in the playoffs than any LHS team in the past decade. Neel Chakravarthy went 10-3 in singles as the #1 Lancers player. He also went 10-3 in doubles with his teammate Board.

Board, at the #3 spot in the lineup, finished the 2024 season at 10-4. In 2023, Board went 7-3 at the #2 spot and 1-3 in the #1 position.

According to Burbine, "Almost all of the starting players are returning next year, with another incredibly deep ladder that will allow room for the guys 5-8 - Evan Fortin, Tieg Broadhurst, Mason Lindholm, Charlie Bowersox, and Sam Barry, to compete with each other for the last two spots and push the whole level, while Chakravarthy, Jayden Wu, Connor Lord, and Logan Hunt will push from the top of the lineup as well."
