Public Comments Session Leads to Arguments at Trustee Meeting

PAUL CONYERS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

A special meeting of the Leach Library Board of Trustees was called for Saturday, June 14, where things broke down rather quickly during its public comment session following questions raised over the latest Treasurer's Report.

"I would like to share with you, very briefly, how the action of the Board have affected me," said library staff member Colleen Magdziarz, who helped the library prepare its regular financial reports. "I would like to address the Treasurer's Report for January through March of 2025 that was approved at the Board meeting on June 4. Moria asked if Treasurer Jan had checked over the figures of the report. Jan responded by saying she had not checked over the report. This was extremely frustrating to me as the staff member who does the report, and tries to have it prepared in a timely manner."

Magdziarz wanted the Board of Trustees to move faster on their reports, urging them to act as if they were "auditors."

"We are audited every year by the same auditors as the town, the Treasurer's Reports are included in that audit, along with bank statements, invoices, etc. I know the auditors are going to have questions," she said. "The numbers on this report are an accurate reflection of your bank statements. However, when preparing this report, I noticed that there were a bunch of missing checks."

Three checks were voided due to mistakes, something Magdziarz claimed Library Director Erin Matlin initially did not know about because of a lack of a paper trail.

Slater Proposes Potential Option For District Office

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

With time running out on the 10-year lease and possible solutions being hard to come by for the School District office, School Board Chair, Bob Slater, presented a potential idea to solve the District Office space needs during the most recent Town Council meeting.

The district currently rents space as part of a 10-year lease. However with the yearly costs, along with uncertainty after the lease expires, there have been various warrant articles on the ballot in recent years to address it.

There was also some talk about the potential of buying a property on Buttrick Road, but that building is currently under agreement.

"The School Board thought we had a good plan back in March," Slater said noting it would take of full-day kindergarten and the district office issues.

After not receiving the 60 percent threshold to pass the project in March Slater explained during the meeting that they have a dilemma noting that they aren't sure what they are going to do with the kindergartens or district office project.

"The School board hasn't discussed that," Slater said.

It was explained by Slater during the meeting that they are current-

State Advances Key Housing Bills Amid Ongoing Debate

MEREDITH KENDRICK
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The NH Legislature continues to advance a sweeping package of housing-related bills aimed at addressing the state's growing housing shortage. Critics warn that the proposals could erode local control over development decisions.

One of the most high-profile bills, SB 538, dubbed the "HOMEnibus," passed the Senate in April 2024 but was voted down in the House on May 2 by a vote of 188-173. The bill sought to promote office-to-residential conversions, reduce local restrictions on small multi-unit housing, and streamline approval processes. Its defeat marked a significant setback for advocates of statewide housing reform.

Rockingham Road Project to Emphasize Greenspace

PAUL CONYERS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Conservation Commission met June 10 to hear a presentation from Doug MacGuire of The Dubay Group and John Norton of Dark Horse Investments for a conditional use permit for a housing development at 222 Rockingham Road.

"The property is 8.4ish acres, with access off of Rockingham Road. There are a couple of wetland fingers that came into the property that bisected the large area of upland in the back and we tried to work within that for our development strategy," explained MacGuire. "What we have here is we have four buildings. These are proposed to be residential buildings. Each building is a total of 12 units, it's a three-story building and each floor has four units, and the nice part about this, and we're excited, is that it's a different product compared to anything Londonderry has seen."

He described every residence as "a corner unit," differentiating them from other multi-unit proposals, such as apartments or townhouses.

"The buildings leave a fair amount of greenspace in there," said MacGuire. "For a development on Rockingham Road, it's really tucked in pretty nicely into that greenspace, especially when you get behind the wetland buffer."

The proposal would use the buffers to leave extensive vegetation on undeveloped tracts throughout the property. The plan involved a few, generally limited wetland impacts, mainly related to the drainage system. At least some of the impact was considered temporary.

While they were generally impressed with the effort taken to minimize potential damage to the nearby wetlands, the Commission had a few questions about how the developers would manage the extensive greenspace.

"Who's going to be managing this and will they be taking care of the plantings? Will they hire somebody?" asked Commissioner Deb Lievens. "I have just got involved in a situation about managing plants, and they die. Certain things have certain lifespans and then you'll have a bad winter that'll kill them off. Is there somebody to deal with that? It's a beautiful fan that looks very generous with the plantings; I'd hate to see it go wrong."

MacGuire promised that work was being done to oversee the greenspace with a well-developed landscaping plan, one subject to town oversight.

"The landscaping plan is binding, it's one of the documents that the Planning Board physically signs," said MacGuire. "They recognize that's an important piece of the plan. It will be managed by a third-party, professional landscaping company that will do the grounds maintenance. They'll do the mowings, they'll maintain the plantings, shape bushes, all of that to maintain the right products."

The owner of the property would be in charge of hiring landscapers while the design included a shed dedicated to maintenance equipment.

"Where does waste go?" asked alternate Mike Speltz.

According to MacGuire, there was a "central location" for residential trash. However, he was less certain about recycling due to what he and Norton called "stringent requirements" for their type of multi-unit housing.

"With some of these requirements, there are problems when people put the wrong stuff in the wrong bins," said Norton.

"When I used to live in a condo association, we used to have recycling and then they did away with it because the company wasn't accepting it anymore," added MacGuire.

Commission Chair Marge Badois strongly encouraged the owner to pursue a recycling bin in the final design, noting that recycling services were standard across Londonderry.

"We're going forward in this world, we have to do everything we can to protect it," she said.

Lancers Clean-Up

Despite the rain on Saturday, June 14, 72 Lancer football players plus parents, coaches, and A.D. James Lauzon turned out in force to do some roadside cleaning for the Beautify Londonderry Committee. They picked up 60+ bags of trash in town plus some abandoned furniture.

Town Manager Urges To Look For State Funding For Roads

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During the Town Manager's report at the most recent Londonderry Town Council meeting, Town Manager Shaun Mulholland explained that they need to work on getting a good handle on transportation planning.

He explained that one way to do so is by looking at trying to get state funding as well, to help improve state roads in town.

"It's interesting with the amount of growth that you have here and the amount of traffic problems that you have here there are only two projects in the 10-year highway plan," Mulholland said.

Mulholland explained that where he worked previously, in Lebanon, they had many more projects on the highway plan.

"Where I came from, smaller community...fewer traffic problems and they've got like 13 projects, and a lot more money being invested from the state there," he said.

Mulholland explained there is a process to try to get more projects on the list.

"We really need to up our game," he said.

Mulholland explained that the Master Plan is a key component of it as well.

"We really need to really advocate for dealing with some of these state projects," he said.

Mulholland said they have different state roads in town, which the State should be providing funding for.

He said currently they have two projects on the books, which are relatively small projects.

"We need to take those steps," he said about getting more projects on the highway plan.

Mulholland said they also need to use their state delegation more to get projects moving forward, by having them advocate with the State on their behalf.

Town Councilor Dan Bouchard asked what the process is to get it started.

Mulholland explained that projects get scored by the regional planning commissions, and each region has funds.

He said based on what is happening in Londonderry, he is surprised there aren't more projects.

"I can't believe we don't have more projects," he said.

Mulholland also explained that they need to have projects shelf-ready, which will require studies to be done to determine the needs.

For state roads, that is something the State should be paying for, he said.

"We need to push that issue," Mulholland said.

He said they also need to work with their Executive Council members, saying that they need to have a stronger relationship with them, to help advocate.

"They need to hear from us," Mulholland said.

The next Town Council meeting is slated to take place on July 7 beginning at 7 p.m.

Key Bills

isolation remains in play. HB 1399, SB 482, and HB 1215 are still under review in committee, with no votes scheduled. In contrast, HB 577, which requires municipalities to allow accessory dwelling units (ADUs) by right, passed both chambers earlier this year and now awaits final concurrence or the governor's signature. If enacted, this bill could significantly impact Londonderry's zoning framework, which has traditionally restricted detached ADUs in many residential areas. Local officials worry it could accelerate density in neighborhoods not equipped with sufficient infrastructure.

Parking-focused measures, HB 382 and SB 284, which aim to reduce parking requirements for small-scale developments, have cleared the Senate and are now awaiting action in the House. In towns like Londonderry, where traffic congestion around key corridors like Route 102 is a continued concern, reduced parking mandates could further strain busy intersections and retail areas.

Several additional bills passed the Senate in March 2025 and are pending in the House. These include SB 84, which prohibits towns from setting minimum lot sizes over one acre in serviced areas for at least half of residential zones; HB 631, which allows residential or mixed-use development by right in commercial areas with water and sewer, and SB 282, which permits certain mid-rise buildings to use a single stairwell under specific fire-safety conditions. SB 81, which proposes doubling funding for the state's Affordable Housing Trust from $5 million to $10 million annually, passed the Senate on March 6. However, it is currently on hold in the Senate Finance Committee amid broader budget negotiations. If funded, the program could offer opportunities for communities like Londonderry to apply for infrastructure grants tied to pro-housing zoning changes, but only if they comply with the new mandates.

Meanwhile, HB 685 has emerged as one of the more controversial proposals. The bill would require every municipality to allow manufactured housing in all residential zones. It passed both chambers in May and entered conference committee for final reconciliation on June 17. Supporters argue the measure is essential to promoting affordability and housing choice. Opponents, however, argue it strips towns of their zoning rights and undermines democratic input. In testimony before the Senate on May 2, Rep. Len Turcotte stated, "As with every other one of the dozen plus state-imposed, top-down zoning dictates that have been introduced, each municipality already has the ability to alter their zoning regulations using the warrant article process. Therefore, none of these bills are needed." For Londonderry, which currently limits manufactured housing to specific zones, the bill could bypass local site plan review and increase density in traditionally single-family areas.

Town planners have previously voiced concern that state-level mandates may override local growth management strategies, affect traffic patterns, and reduce the town's ability to maintain its suburban identity. Residents can voice their support or opposition to the bills by submitting testimony online at gencourt.state.nh.us, contacting their local legislators, or attending public hearings at the State House.

OBITUARY

Frances B. Stewart

Frances B. Stewart, after a four year battle with ovarian cancer, passed away at age 74 on Monday June 16, 2025 at her home surrounded by her loving family. Fran was born in Providence, RI on April 1, 1951, a daughter of the late Frank and Dolores (LaChance) Barra.

She had resided in Londonderry for eight years, formerly living in Hampstead and Derry, NH.

Fran was so proud of her career as a first-grade teacher, helping hundreds of young people get all of their lights turned on. Always incredibly nice, Fran was a mix of unstoppable energy, brilliant wit, and pure soul. All who knew her were enriched by her beauty, grace, and sincerity. Although she was called home too soon, you will see her in the smiles of people she knew and hear her in the laughter of children.

She is survived by her husband and best friend of 47 years, James L. Stewart of Londonderry; her son, Ryan J. Stewart and his wife Amy of Medford, MA; stepdaughter, Jennifer Smith and her husband Chad of Franklin, NH; stepson, John P. Stewart and his wife Caitlin of Arlington, VA; and her brother; Michael Barra and his wife Licia of Beaufort, SC; plus, four grandchildren, Vivian, Margot, Dean and Mac and two nephews Matt and Nick.

Following cremation, a private memorial gathering may be held at a later date at the family's convenience. To send a condolence or for more information, please visit www.peabodyfuneralhome.com.

A Reason to Celebrate

July 4 is a time to recognize that without the events that transpired long ago, we may have been subjects of Great Britain today. Instead, the Declaration of Independence was finalized on July 4, 1776, setting the former British colonies on the path toward becoming a nation.

What should we be celebrating? The Declaration of Independence itself. This important document reminds us of our identity as a nation and reinforces the principles established by those who fought for our freedom.

Perhaps the document's most recognized lines from the document state "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness." The phrase "created equal" is one we need to remember every day. Additionally, the list of injustices attributed to Great Britain serves as a powerful reminder of what our government should never become. This message is especially relevant during times when political attacks reach unpleasant levels.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness." The phrase "created equal" is one we need to remember every day. Additionally, the list of injustices attributed to Great Britain serves as a powerful reminder of what our government should never become. This message is especially relevant during times when political attacks reach unpleasant levels.

The Declaration emphasizes straightforward yet profound concepts: life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. It states, "To secure these rights, governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." While this may seem normal to us, in many countries, it is still just a dream.

It serves as a reminder of how our ancestors chose a government whose power comes from the people. When we don't vote, we are shirking that responsibility—something countless individuals fought and died to achieve. And when we do vote, the outcome becomes law, regardless of whether our side won or lost.

National holidays have evolved into times for public celebrations and private gatherings, but celebrating the Fourth of July should be about more than just barbecuing, lighting sparklers, or attending fireworks displays. While these activities capture the spirit of the celebration, we should also take time to reflect on what this nation represents.

Have a safe and fun filled Fourth of July. Our ancestors would want it to be celebrated that way.

Out of Control Library

To the editor,
So the citizen Rumor Mill is already swirling that the Town Council as part of their meeting on June 16, 2025 discussed that the library Trustees needed to be reigned in because they are mistreating Library employees.

As a citizen who is a patron of the library and has attended many of the Trustee meetings, I can tell you that that narrative is flat out false. The library employees, including the Director Erin Matlin (especially Erin) treat the Trustees like absolute garbage and speak to them in ways that no elected officials should ever be spoken to.

Erin avoids accountability at every possible opportunity. She frequently refuses to give the Trustees information which is why they have to request it directly from the town. I can tell you from dealing with her as a private citizen that she puts as little in writing as possible in order to avoid 91a record requests. She manipulates policies and bylaws at every turn and is one of the most toxic employees of the town of Londonderry.

It is significantly concerning that the Town of Londonderry believes the Trustees as elected officials have no right to request information without the library Director being looped in.

I highly recommend concerned citizens monitor what is going on at your local library and consider attending a meeting of the library Trustees to support them in their efforts for accountability and transparency.

Library Trustees

To the editor,

If any of my fellow Londonderites have not heard about the last special meeting called by the Chairman of the board, please be aware that it was a complete let's bully the Library Director, even to calling in the police.

We residents, I'm sure, elected our Board of Trustees to support and better the services that the Library provides for us. We are getting micromanaging to the extent that the majority of the board members are calling for every pencil to be accounted for. Can you imagine such behavior? Their agenda is not to serve us who voted them in, but to cause chaos which we all know whose agenda they are following.

Is there away to remove these four?

China Sabotaging Solar Arrays

To the editor,

I have always been concerned about the quality and security of products imported from China. Their quality control is abysmal, and over the decades there have been many instances of poor-quality imports from China, including lead paint in toys, contaminated pet food and toothpaste, faulty mass transit vehicles, radioactive dry wall, carcinogenic fish and contaminated candy. Another major concern is the possibility of China intentionally building in failure of their products, which could compromise the proper functioning of U.S. systems.

It was recently reported Chinese "kill switches" have been found in solar arrays at U.S. solar facilities. They were found inside of power inverters manufactured by Chinese companies. The power inverters link solar or wind farms with the overall power system. The "kill switches" can be remotely activated,

Chinese companies provide about half of the solar power inverters in the world, and any widespread control of power grids could compromise operations, cause widespread blackouts and endanger national security. Communist China is an adversary who could sabotage products and systems shipped to the U.S. People, companies and government agencies should be wary of Chinese products and should conduct in-depth testing of the products before accepting them.

School Board Improves Price Increase For Student Meals

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

At the most recent School Board meeting one of the agenda items was in regards to a proposed increase for meals for students during the next school year.

"This memo is to notify the School Board of the intent to increase the price of school lunches for SY25-26," Director of Dining Services Krystle Connell wrote in a memo to the School Board.

Connell noted that the change would only be for student lunches.

"Breakfast and teacher meal pricing will not be affected," she wrote in a memo.

Business Administrator Amity Small, explained during the meeting, that after being advised, it was determined to propose an increase of 10 cents per lunch for students.

"After completing the PLE tool (Paid Lunch Equity Tool) and learning from the NHBG (NH Buying Group) that some prices would see at least a 5% increase, it is in the department's best interest to increase prices," Connell wrote. "Our goal is not to burden families; this increase will help us stay on a healthy budget."

For lunch during the FY 25-26 school year, the cost for lunches for students will be $2.85 for Moose Hill, and at all of the elementary schools.

Londonderry Middle School would have its lunches at $3.10 per student, and Londonderry High School would be $3.60.

The School Board unanimously approved the proposal to increase the lunches by 10 cents per meal for FY 25-26.

Another agenda item during the meeting was in regard to a proposal for the Londonderry Middle School carpet replacement.

"We posted an RFP for the LMS Carpet Replacement on June 6th and accepted proposals until June 13th," Small wrote in a memo.

It was noted by Small during the meeting that they received three different quotes during the meeting, ranging from $29,890 to $39,663.

During the meeting, Small said that they were recommending going with the lowest bid.

"We are recommending that R. Fraser get this project. They have the best price and their references are stellar. This carpet project includes: Three full-size classrooms, an office, and the locker pod area, as well as the demo and disposal of old carpet, floor prep, and the addition of a new cove base,"

Small wrote. "This carpet product is high-quality and known for its durability and longevity."

It was stated by Small that it would be coming from the budget.

"This project will be completed this summer and is funded by the General Fund B&G Construction Budget," Small wrote.

The School Board unanimously approved the proposal during the meeting.

The next School Board meeting is slated to take place on July 15

Another check apparently remained uncashed.

Resident Alicia Frank echoed the financial concerns.

"I would like to suggest to ask a Board that you take a look at how your current Trustee account check register looks right now," said Frank. "Before implementing any drastic financial changes, you might want to get that register in order."

Trustee Chair Liz Thomas expressed her strong disapproval of the assertions.

"How dare anyone come up here and suggest, after Erin has reported that there might have been an impropriety, how dare they come up in public, in a recorded session, and make statements like that. They should check with Erin," said Thomas. "What I told Erin is that Jan, as an officer of the Trustees, went into the library and requested to get her reports printed.

She was refused, by a staff member, and Erin disagrees with this, but Jan was refused not once, but twice."

Director Matlin disputed the Chair's claim that anyone was refused access.

One resident interrupted Thomas, questioning whether it was appropriate for a member of the Trustees to speak at length during the public comment section of the meeting, triggering an argument between the resident and the Chair.

"We are not going to let the general public take over these meetings from now on, it's inappropriate," said Thomas, who eventually called for the police when the resident responsible for the interruption refused to leave the room.

That resident identified herself as Debbie Desrochers, and she refused to be silenced, citing point of order.

Thomas added, "This is why we can never ever get anything done."

Although the police arrived a few minutes later, forcing a pause on the meeting, nobody was removed and two officers left after a brief discussion with Thomas.

Both the Chair's decision to call the police and the interruptions drew heavy criticism from other residents.

"What a circus it became. The audacity to interrupt other Board members as they spoke and the audacity to speak in such a manner to our library staff and Director," said resident Tara Myles. "I would not put up with that in my own job, and I am disappointed in some of the members of this Board and how they acted."

Resident Erica Laue criticized the speech as part of the Trustees for poor time management and what she saw as a lack of basic knowledge about library operations.

"I've heard you say you don't know the answer to a question, you ask for clarification on accounts over and over, you don't know the RSA for this, you don't know the policy for that, you're not sure of this, there's no homework being done," said Laue. "You are elected officials. No, it's not a paid position and no, it's not an overtly thankful position, unfortunately, but when you come up here unprepared for meetings it hurts your taxpayers and it hurts your library."

She also accused the Trustees of not doing their jobs while "micro-managing" library employees.

The next meeting of the Leach Library Board of Trustees is scheduled for Wednesday, July 9, at 7 p.m. in the Leach Library meeting room.

Londonderry Aims for New Citizen Representative on PFAS Commission

PAUL CONYERS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry Utilities Committee met on June 3 with news from Concord on PFAS remediation efforts. Committee Liaison and New Hampshire state representative Ron Dunn outlined his position on the Commission on the Environmental and Public Health Impacts of Perfluorinated Chemicals, which was formed with the goal of investigating the effect of PFAS chemicals across Southern NH.

“What the commission does is that it studies the impacts of PFAS in Merrimack, Londonderry, Litchfield, Hudson, and Bedford,” explained Dunn. “We get updates for each town as far as they stand with either water lines being installed or any kind of other systems and updates as to where we are as far as air quality, stuff like that.”

The organization also received regular updates for the ongoing decommissioning of the old Saint-Gobain Plant.

“The last update we had was that they were grinding up the concrete and sending that out, basically making sure anything PFAS-related was out of the area,” said Dunn. “Each town is represented and I am trying to get a citizen representative for us.”

Alternate Ray Breslin offered to serve as a representative from Londonderry on the PFAS commission, along with Dunn, who took over for Tom Dolan.

“What has come out of that commission?” asked Utilities Committee member Ann Fenn. “Have there been any policy papers? Any documents?”

According to Dunn, the PFAS commission sent a monthly report for the governor, senate president, and house speaker, along with an annual report.

The commission was in its sixth year, and it will last until at least

Water subcommittee chair Jeff McGraw had no significant news on the High Range Road water line.

“Construction start is pending, it should be starting any minute now,” said McGraw. “I’m anticipating getting a plan for the construction.”

With the High Range Road project well underway, a large-scale build-out of the water system remained a long-term goal. The water subcommittee was primarily focused on ways to finance future water lines in conjunction with state authorities.

“That’s something

we’ll learn more from doing our research. We need to make sure we get our sequencing correct because we can’t do $250 million all at once,” said McGraw. “Even if we had the money, we couldn’t spend it effectively very quickly, so this could be a 20-year project. That much is a lot for a town this size, it’s a huge deal.”

He reminded the rest of the Utilities committee they served as a “recommendation team,” one not tasked with making final decisions regarding design or funding.

“There are many other avenues for money,” said Fenn. “Essentially, with appropriations you can ask our senators or our congressmen to put in a bit in there for an appropriations bill.”

“I encourage each and every single one of you as citizens of Londonderry to contact your representatives,” said Administrative Support Coordinator Kirsten Hildonen, reminding everyone to speak as a resident only. “Please don’t represent it as a position of the Town of Londonderry.”

Utilities Chair Lynn Wiles suggested considering the “regional implications” of the buildout project as things begin to develop.

District Office

ly in year eight out of 10 for the lease and they would need to negotiate next year if they want to stay in their current space.

Prior to being on the School Board Slater explained that he was involved with trying to get the old building next to the Town Hall rebuilt as the district office.

He said the Town was going to provide $2 million in a 0% interest loan for 10-years.

Slater said the School Board at that time didn’t want to entertain it “because they had just entered into this lease.”

When he got elected he went back with a proposal to have a two-story addition for Town Hall for just under $5 million which wasn’t approved by the voters.

Slater said he wants to look at a one-story building for a total of about 6,000 square feet next door.

He explained that they would like to spend about $15,000 in school district funds to have plans made so they could get pricing.

If it works and they can get pricing for approximately $2.5 million he suggested the option of potentially using $600,000 in the expected end-of-the-year fund balance and the Town could loan $1.9 million from the sale of the Gilcreast Road, Road property.

“These are some thoughts and Ideas I’ve had,” Slater said.

It was explained by Slater that they would like to take three to four months at it, to see if it’s even a possibility.

“That’s what we would like to look at,”

Slater said.

Town Manager Shaun Mulholland recommended that they look at forming a task force with the school district to explore it.

“I think it’s worthwhile,” he said.

After getting a consensus from the Town Council to look at it, the School Board the next night approved spending $15,000 to have plans drawn.

Of note, the location of the old School District office, before moving to Kitty Hawk Landing was adjacent to the Town Hall. The building’s airquality was deemed to be unsafe and it was demolished shortly after staff had moved out.

Financial Matters Continues to Dominate Trustee Meeting

PAUL CONYERS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Leach Library Board of Trustees held a special meeting on June 14 to discuss several pending financial issues, including a proposed switch to a new bank. As the move involved the transfer of public funds, it immediately raised questions from members of the public and Library Director Erin Matlin.

"I have a lot of questions about who is going to be moving this money, who's going to be tracking this money as it gets moved. I am concerned about the amount of money that's in these accounts and that they will be moved," said Matlin. "We're also starting a new fiscal year where we will be ordering materials paid out of that book account." As the Director, she wanted to know the details, fearing the library could fall behind on paying essential expenses without a clear procedure.

"The book account is what we our vendors out of," said Matlin. "How is that going to be transferred to what we need to do?"

According to Chair Liz Thomas, the Trustees would need to "come up with a business process" with a change of banks, but she wanted to finalize the decision to switch because of discussing the process.

"Whatever process we set up, the library will continue to work," she promised.

The discussion over the bank transfer gave way to deeper issues related to library finance, with the approaching end of the 2024-2025 fiscal year, as Treasurer Jan McLaughlin noticed that several line items were higher than expected.

"One is tuition reimbursement, which has exceeded the budgeted amount," she reported, saying it was not the only program the library had trouble accurately budgeting for. "There's staff time involved creating the programs, developing the programs, cleaning up, all that stuff. We need to figure out the time involved so we can better tell the taxpayers why we're going to increase a line."

It was not the first time the problem had come up as the Trustees looked into smaller costs, including postage, printing, maintenance, and repair supplies, which had a few unexpected expenses.

"Whatever the town and the budget department approves of that's it, we're going to have to live within our means," said Thomas.

More changes were expected for next year's budget as Trustees looked to keep an eye on some of their longer-term spending habits.

"We know that the employee's insurance fund is going up this year and it's going to affect the salary line. We know we're bringing on one new position that we have the warrant article and the money for, but it's going to be tight this particular year," said Thomas. "In today's environment, programs are just as important as going to the library to check out a book."

She warned there would probably be "restraints" from the Budget Committee in the next budget season.

Trustee Nancy Hendricks wanted to know why the financial discussions often seemed to overlook many details of Leach Library's seasonal programs.

"I am very concerned that we have been meeting consistently since March and we've had very few if any discussions about programming. Memorial Day has come and gone. We had no discussion about what, if anything, to do for Memorial Day," she said. "I understand there's some really terrific programming around Juneteenth, but we haven't had any discussion about that."

In a similar vein, several members of the public were frustrated with the near-Cotinus focus on financial matters at the expense of everything else.

"Obligation to the taxpayers seems to be a mantra at every one of these meetings," said resident Erica Laue. "Yes, we care about how our money is being spent. Yes, we want to see how it's being spent but my God, you are nickel and diming this library to death!"

She wanted to see the Trustees pay more attention to programming and the acquisition of books and e-materials.

Lancers Softball Players Receive All-State Honors

Elisabeth Kearney

Allison Chambers

Abby Austen

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The 2025 Londonderry High School Softball team had its season end with a second straight Division I title, so having members also receive honors from the New Hampshire Softball Coaches Organization is no big surprise.

Junior pitching sensation Elisabeth Kearney and shortstop Allison Chambers both were selected to the Division I All-State First Team.

Lead-off hitter Chambers appeared in 21 of the team's 22 games and got on base in over half her at-bats. She had an on-base percentage of .538 and had a .486 batting average with 82 plate appearances. She had 34 hits, with 13 doubles and produced 19 RBIs this season.

Kearney, who was also the N.H. Gatorade

Player of the year and Division I pitcher of the year, was a big asset at the plate and in the circle throughout the year. The right-hander played in all 22-games and finished with a perfect 18-0 record when she pitched. She pitched 123 innings, facing 426 batters and only gave up 25 hits and nine runs all season. Of those 426 batters, she struck out 292, nearly 70-percent.

Kearney was a formidable hitter also, batting in the third spot in the line-up and batting .459 with 11 doubles and three homeruns this season. She also tallied 31 RBIs, the highest on the team.

The team's only senior, Abby Austen, who played third base and batted second in the line-up was named to the Division I Second Team.

Austen played in all 22-games with 80 plate appearances and batted .351 with 26-hits including eight doubles. She had a .429 on-base percentage and a .622 slugging percentage.

Austen will be heading to Wentworth Institution of Technology next year where she will be playing softball and majoring in Biological Engineering.

The coach's organization also named head coach Dave Johnson as the Division I Co-Coach of the Year. He led the Lancers team to its second straight division title, winning every game this season and 33 consecutive victories from May of 2024 in his fifth year as a LHS coach.

The Londonderry girls' run in this year's playoffs, they had a narrow 1-0 win in the quarterfinals, at home, against the Portsmouth Clippers to move onto a 10-inning, 2-1 win, in a pitchers dual at Plymouth State University in the semi-final round against the 12th-seeded Concord Crimson Tide.

In the state finals, against rival Pinkerton Academy, on June 14, at Plymouth State the team had their 22nd win of the season with a 4-1, one-hitter.

Londonderry Lightning Capture State Championship

SUBMITTED BY MATT DiCARLO

The Londonderry Lightning 10U softball team has been crowned the 2025 New Hampshire Babe Ruth State Champions, adding another chapter to the program's impressive history. This marks the third consecutive 10U state title for the Lightning program – an extraordinary achievement that reflects the depth of talent, preparation, and commitment across all levels of the organization.

Playing at home on the Londonderry Athletic Field Association (LAFA) fields, the Lightning powered through the tournament with a dominant 6-0 record. They outscored their opponents by a jaw-dropping 93-9, combining explosive offense with stifling pitching. In the championship tournament, Lightning pitchers delivered three no-hitters, including a no-hitter in the championship game.

Over the course of the tournament, the Lightning bats stayed hot, producing 76 hits, including 6 home runs—a testament to the team's hard work and consistent development throughout the season.

Since last fall, the 10U Lightning have amassed an incredible 41-7-3 record and numerous tournament championships, competing in some of the region's top tournaments and steadily establishing themselves as one of the premier 10U programs in New England.

The roster features a talented and hardworking group of athletes:

Daniela DiCarlo, Layla LoPriore, Molly Bacon, Harper Sullivan, Emma Covatis, Mia Cail, Kenzie Cunio, Evelyn Tucker, Caylee Sevigny, Lola Tebbetts, and Kate Williams.

The team is led by a dedicated coaching staff: Matt DiCarlo, Steve LoPriore, Matt Tucker, Nick Covatis, and TJ Sullivan – each bringing passion, knowledge, and leadership to the field every day.

The Lightning will wrap up their season with three more competitive tournaments, with stops in upstate New York, Concord, NH, and back home in Londonderry.

If you have a player who may be interested in joining the Londonderry Lightning Softball program please contact EVPS softball@lafa.info.

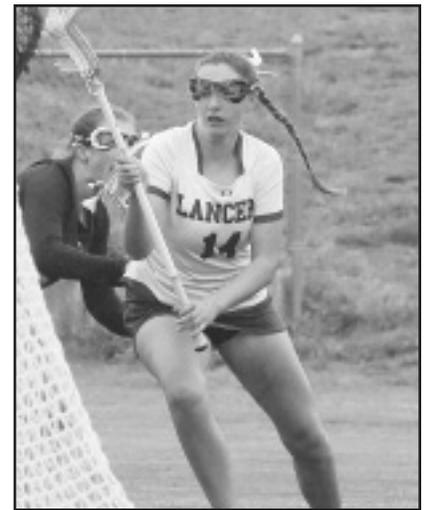

On Friday, June 20, Londonderry High School freshman, Patrick Ramsey, competed at the New Balance Nationals Outdoor Track and Fields Championships in Philadelphia, PA. Ramsey qualified to compete in the Freshman Two-Mile during the N.H. Division I State Championship on May 30. Ramsey was part of the 4x800 team that placed fifth at the state meet and he finished in 8th in the 3,200 Meter Run.

Molly Leone - First Team

Eres Delorey - Second Team

Annabelle Melia - Second Team

Although the Londonderry High School Girls' Lacrosse team may have missed out on a bid at the playoffs this season, three players were chosen by the coaches association for All-State teams.

Molly Leone was selected to Division I First Team and Eres Delorey and Annabelle Melia were chosen for spots on the DI Second Team.
